Foreword

This is the 15th edition of the Legislative Research Commission’s Bill Drafting Manual, published initially in 1955 as part of a comprehensive study of the Kentucky legislative process.

The booklet will be helpful to new members of the General Assembly and those called upon to perform legislative drafting service. It is a guide to the correct form for bills and resolutions and provides information on style and constitutional limitations. Veterans of the legislative process will find it useful as a checklist on the specific characteristics and language of legislation in Kentucky.

The manual is not concerned with the substance of bills or resolutions. Legislative staff members professionally acquainted with the various subjects relating to public policy are available on an impartial, nonpartisan, confidential basis to draft bills upon request by legislators or legislative committees.

This revision of the Bill Drafting Manual was undertaken by the Reviser of Statutes and staff of the Legislative Research Commission.

Preliminary Considerations

Sec. 101. Introduction

The legislative power of the Commonwealth is vested in the General Assembly, which has exclusive power to create, amend, and repeal statutes. The quality of the legislative product depends not only upon the substance of laws, but upon their form and style. Inaccurate or careless drafting may produce bad laws or even invalidate a measure entirely. It is essential to legislators, administrators, courts, and the public that bills and resolutions be written in a clear, correct, and unambiguous style.

Sec. 102. Legislative Drafting Service

The Legislative Research Commission, which is the staff agency of the General Assembly, is directed by statute to “[a]fford to any member of the General Assembly or any committee of either house of the General Assembly such information and assistance as may be practicable in the preparation of bills, memorials, resolutions, amendments, alterations and changes thereto, and revisions and substitutes thereof, proposed to be introduced into the General Assembly” KRS 7.100(3). The rules of each house require submission to the Legislative Research Commission of all bills proposed for introduction.

Commission staff members are available to draft measures and to counsel legislators and committees about proposed legislation, both between and during sessions. Any legislator desiring this service may submit a request for legislative drafting or may consult with a member of the staff or with the Reviser of Statutes on the legal aspects of the methods and objectives of proposed legislation, and the proposal will be drafted in proper form for introduction in the legislature. Bills drafted by legislators will be reviewed by the staff and by the Reviser prior to introduction. Requests for legislative drafting are submitted to the Director or a designated assistant for assignment to the appropriate drafter.

By law, all drafting requests from legislators are treated with the strictest confidence and are not discussed outside the immediate staff. If conferences with other persons or agencies seem desirable, the drafter will ask the sponsor’s permission before taking such action. The legislator is assured that both the request and the bill will be confidential.

Drafting requests should be submitted as early as possible before or during the session to give the staff adequate time to prepare the measures. Every effort is made to handle requests promptly, but bills require considerable time for preparation, and one bill may require many drafts. The drafter cannot sacrifice accuracy for speed.

Members of the General Assembly and members-elect who have received their certificates of election may, when the General Assembly is not in session, pre-file bills and resolutions for introduction in the next succeeding regular legislative session with the Director of the Legislative Research Commission. Extending the period during which bills are publicized and discussed extends the period during which the Commission’s bill-drafting staff can be of greatest benefit to members. See KRS 6.245.

Research and reference services of the Commission may be used by the legislator to obtain information on the subject of proposed legislation. The Commission maintains a reference library of material on most subjects of legislative interest, information on programs of other states, uniform state legislation, and an index of bills and resolutions introduced in previous sessions. Any legislator may request that the Commission prepare a research memorandum on a particular problem or supply data needed in formulating a legislative proposal.

Sec. 103. The Drafter’s Job

Determining the objectives and content of legislation is the prerogative of the legislator or committee. The drafter’s function is similar to that of a lawyer preparing instruments for a client, and the drafter should be able to call upon a broad background of the law and government to accomplish the purposes of the legislator. It is the responsibility of the drafter to suggest alternative methods for accomplishing the objectives, point out the possibility of unconstitutionality of a proposal, and provide such counseling as will clarify the thinking of the legislator. However, the legislator’s ideas, and not the drafter’s, must be incorporated in the bill. Moreover, if a legislator wants a bill, it is the duty of the drafter to prepare it, regardless of personal thoughts on its desirability or propriety. The drafter should not express or promote personal ideas or interests but must remain an impartial technician. If the drafter exercises unwarranted discretion in regard to content, the legislation may produce results that the sponsor did not intend. The drafter should not become emotionally or personally attached to the bill or its eventual outcome and should not “lobby” for its passage or defeat.

The first and most important step in preparing legislation is to comprehend the sponsor’s objectives and gain a thorough understanding of what the measure is intended to accomplish. At this point, initial policy questions and the general structure of the bill should be discussed. In some cases, several consultations with the legislator may be necessary to resolve policy questions that were not anticipated in the initial instructions but arose in the process of drafting.

The second step is to carry out whatever research is necessary to prepare a good bill. The drafter should be able to visualize clearly how a bill will work if enacted into law. This requirement necessitates a comprehensive knowledge of the operations of all phases of the state and local governments and of judicial procedures. Thus, the bill drafter must become an expert in the field of government and, if unable to see how a law will work, do the research necessary to find out. This research must include a check of the Constitution, statutes, and annotations. If it is found that the proposal or certain features of it may be unconstitutional, the drafter should immediately contact the sponsor and inform him or her of the potential problem and recommended solutions. A sample memorandum for that purpose is provided as Appendix H of this manual. This information should be included in the bill folder for future reference. Laws of other states on the same subject often are helpful. In some cases, considerable study of the problem is required before actual drafting can begin. The drafter should check the uniform acts of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and the suggested state legislation of the Council of State Governments, which may be found in the Legislative Research Commission library.

The third preliminary is to develop a definite plan for organizing and arranging the proposed content. Clarity of expression must rest on clarity of thought and construction. In some cases, an orderly and logical development of the bill will be attained only after several tentative outlines have been made.
Sec. 103

Numerous drafts of a particular bill may be required to achieve accuracy of expression. If needed, contact the Reviser of Statutes for assistance in formulating a bill draft.
Chapter 2

Form of Bills

Sec. 201. Introduction

A legislative bill consists of a title, an enacting clause, and a body of provisions to be enacted. Each part is essential and must be complete within itself. The proper forms of the title and enacting clause are defined by law and custom, but the form and length of the body depend on the purpose to be accomplished.

Sec. 202. Title

The Constitution of Kentucky provides that: “No law enacted by the General Assembly shall relate to more than one subject and that shall be expressed in the title...” (Const., § 51).

The purpose of the title is to give notice of the general subject dealt with in the bill, so that the members of the General Assembly and the public may be informed of the particular field in which the bill proposes to legislate. The idea is that the member of the legislature or any other person should be able to determine by the title whether the bill deals with a subject of particular interest or concern.

No question of the form of legislation comes before the courts more persistently than the validity of titles to acts. The constitutional provision for titles is mandatory, and failure to comply with it will invalidate a measure.

A bill’s title should be broad and general enough to encompass all of the bill’s provisions, which should have a natural connection with the subject expressed in the title.

It must not be so broad, however, as to be misleading. Any title that misleads makes the act void. As an example, an act that provided for the annexation of unincorporated territory by a city has been held not included in the title “AN ACT relating to cities,” because it dealt with territory that was not a city. Indeed, the cardinal sin in preparing titles is to use language that misleads about the contents of the bill. The highest degree of care, therefore, must be exercised to make certain that the subject of the bill is embraced plainly in the title.

If broad language does not appear adequate or if the sponsor insists, a detailed title can be used. If a detailed title is used, it must be a complete index to the provisions of the bill. The rule Expressio unius est exclusio alterius applies to titles, so that if a detailed title fails to mention a provision of the bill, the title, by implication, says that this provision is not in the bill, and so makes the enactment invalid. It follows that broad and general titles are safest and that detailed titles should be used only with extreme caution. Detailed titles are a particular problem if a bill is amended before passage because the amendment may require the title to be changed.

In most cases, it is best to introduce a title with the words “AN ACT relating to,” followed by an indication of the general subject, such as “income taxation,” “mental health,” or “public highways.”

AN ACT relating to education.

If a bill has only one specific and limited purpose, it is acceptable to use the words “AN ACT providing for” followed by a simple, broad statement of the purpose, such as “the payment of travel expenses for state officers and employees.”

AN ACT providing for the confidential treatment of public records.

Some titles may use both the phrase “relating to” and the phrase “providing for:”

AN ACT relating to a compact between the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the Commonwealth of Virginia providing for the creation, development, and operation of an interstate park to be known as the Breaks Interstate Park.

When a bill carries an appropriation or declares an emergency, the phrase “and making an appropriation therefor” or “and declaring an emergency” should be included in the title as a convenience to legislators, as these bills must be approved by a majority of members elected to each house.

If the bill amends or repeals an existing statute, it is not necessary for the title to state that fact or for it to designate the section number affected. If the title indicates that the sole purpose of a bill is to amend specific sections of a named law, it cannot amend another law.

Sec. 203. Preamble

When insisted upon by a legislator, a preamble (a series of “WHEREAS” clauses) may be included in a bill following the title and preceding the enacting clause. It does not become part of the act but states findings of fact and sets forth general policy. A preamble does not have the effect of a comparable clause in the body of the bill and is seldom used in legislation. The courts have held that a preamble is merely an explanation for the passage of the act, and the facts set forth in it are not admissible as evidence.

Preambles are used in a few special kinds of bills, such as those changing the classification of cities. A preamble to a bill follows the same form as the preamble to a resolution, with clauses commencing with the word “WHEREAS,” setting forth the reasons for legislation.

Sec. 204. Enacting Clause

The style of the enacting clause is fixed by Section 62 of the Constitution. It must be followed exactly in every bill. The identical clause is used for any kind of bill and may not be varied:

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

Failure to include this clause will invalidate the bill; it is the formal expression of legislative enactment. The title and preamble of a bill precede the enacting clause. All sections following the enacting clause become law.
Sec. 205

Sec. 205. Amending Existing Statutes

Few legislative proposals are completely new. Most amend, replace, or supplement existing statutes on the subject. It is of the utmost importance that the drafter check the statutes and appropriate cross-references before preparing a bill. A substantially similar law may already be in force, other statutes may contain in-text references to the statute being amended, or the proposed law may conflict with other statutes that must be amended. Unintentional conflicts must be avoided. The Legislative Research Commission maintains searchable electronic statutory databases containing the Kentucky Revised Statutes and Kentucky Constitution to assist bill drafters in identifying potential conflicts with existing statutes or the Constitution. The drafter must also ascertain whether the affected statutes have been amended at the current session, if one is in progress. Section 51 of the Constitution provides in part:

[N]o law shall be revised, amended, or the provisions thereof extended or conferred by reference to its title only, but so much thereof as is revised, amended, extended or conferred, shall be reenacted and published at length.

This provision under the decisions of the Kentucky Supreme Court requires: 1) that when a section of an act is amended, the entire section, and not just the amendment, must be set forth in the bill; and 2) that a subsection cannot be amended unless it is by itself a complete law and, in that case, the entire subsection must be set forth at length. The practical effect of this provision then is that the legislature amends a law by setting forth the entire section as it will read when amended, and does not try to amend an act, chapter, or subsection only by KRS sections.

It should be noted, however, that this provision does not prohibit the enactment of laws that refer to other laws for some aspect of their operation. Thus, an act that grants the power of eminent domain, but provides that it may be exercised in the manner prescribed by a specific section of KRS, is valid. Neither does this provision prohibit amendments by implication, but amendments of this type are to be avoided if at all possible.

If a statute is amended to include, change, or delete an in-text reference to another statute, the drafter should check to see that similar references do not exist in other statutes. When a statute is amended, the drafter should also check to see if reference is made to it in any other statute. If it is, the other statutes need to be checked for conflicts with the new amendment. This is particularly true for statutes in which penalty sections may be affected by a change in the provisions of the statute for which they provide the penalty.

Where possible, it is better drafting practice to avoid making any statute depend upon another statute for a phase of its operation. Subsequent amendments to or repeal of statutes cited by reference are an increasing source of potential litigation about the meaning of the statute. For instance, if a statute creates a definition by saying, “‘Corporation’ has the same meaning as provided in KRS 271B.1-400,” what is its status when KRS Chapter 271B is repealed sometime in the future and is replaced by KRS Chapter 271C? Drafters using such a definition in a bill draft will need to stay alert to changes in the referred-to statute to ensure that the definition is still appropriate for all other purposes in statutes applying the definition by reference.

Other problems are created by the inclusion of a provision stating that an act becomes effective on the enactment of a particular federal act, since Section 60 of the Constitution of Kentucky prohibits most laws from becoming effective except on the approval of the General Assembly. In cases where the reference is mandated by federal law, then the Kentucky constitutional provision must give way, but in many instances the inclusion is not mandated but done merely for convenience or uniformity. When possible, it is better form simply to use the language of the federal statute. Adoption of a federal statute by reference may create the same problems regarding amendment or repeal if the statute is changed or repealed.

Sec. 206. Format for Amendments to Existing Sections

There should be a separate section of the bill for each existing statute section to be amended, and each of these sections should begin with an amending clause. This facilitates later integration of the bill into the statutes. The following form is used:
Section 2. KRS 165.040 is amended to read as follows:

The funds appropriated by the board of aldermen of a city of the first class as provided in KRS 165.030 may be paid to the treasurer of the university by the director of finance of the city in regular weekly installments.

Section 3. KRS 165.050 is amended to read as follows:

In amending one or more sections of an act or KRS chapter, it is sufficient to amend only the sections that are to be changed. The entire act or chapter need not be set forth at length. The entire statute section being amended must be set out, not just the particular subsection or subdivision affected.

Sec. 207. Use of Underlining and Bracketing

In bills amending existing sections, the new wording is underlined and the deleted wording is placed in brackets and struck through with a single line. Generally, the new wording should precede the bracketed wording, but there may be exceptions to this rule for the sake of convenience and clarity.

Drafters should only underline the space before a new word at the end of a paragraph. For example, if “and” is added following a semicolon, the space before “and” would be underlined, too. Or, if a new sentence is added at the end of paragraph, the space before the first word would need to be underlined. If the connecting new space between a semicolon or period and the new language added to a paragraph is not underlined, the new language will be inserted as a new paragraph.

Brackets and strikethroughs are used only in a section that amends an existing statute. This type of section is introduced with the following clause:

KRS _________ is amended to read as follows:

If the first part of a sentence is bracketed and a small letter beginning the next word thereby becomes a capital letter, do not insert an underlined bold italic capital letter and bracket and strike through the existing lowercase letter. It is sufficient to capitalize that letter without underlining it.

We must include the space before the first word we intend to delete within the bracketed material. This is the required drafting method, and it is especially important because Bill Processing will not be proofing amended sections of bills unless Statute Revision has made changes to them. Drafters will still be performing the last check, but we might not be checking the spaces.

Amended statutes will still validate even if we bracket and strikethrough the wrong (or no) spaces. So again, it is important to make certain that the correct spaces are within the brackets.

Example 1:… prevention of disease [in humans];

The space before “in” is included within the brackets. This will make certain that, when codified, there is no space before the semicolon.

Example 2:… prevention of disease in [humans or] animals;

The space after “in” is included within the brackets. This still allows for a space before “animals” when the change is codified.

But see Example 3 exception, sort of:… prevention of disease in food and [humans or] animals;

The newly inserted material is placed immediately before the bracketed material. We preserve the spaces before and after “humans or” because we will still need them after codification.

Sec. 208. Creating New Statutes

Any proposal to add a new section to a chapter of KRS must ordinarily be enacted as entirely new law and not as an amendment.

Each new section created should be a separate section of the bill. The following form is used:

SECTION 27. A NEW SECTION OF KRS CHAPTER 363 IS CREATED TO READ AS FOLLOWS:

“Weight” as used in Sections 1 to 12 of this Act in connection with any commodity means net weight. If any commodity is sold on the basis of weight, the net weight of the commodity shall be employed, and all contracts concerning commodities shall be so construed.

New sections of statutes are shown in underlined bold italics in the bill. All capital letters are used for the introductory clause when a new section is created.
The drafter selects the proper KRS chapter in which to place the new section. However, that decision is not binding on the Reviser, who may, even after enactment, place the section in a different chapter.

In some large bills, it will be desirable to establish a new KRS chapter. Check with the Reviser of Statutes, who will assign a chapter number for you. When a new KRS chapter is established, the following form is used in the first section of the bill:

SECTION 1. KRS CHAPTER ________ IS ESTABLISHED AND A NEW SECTION THEREOF IS CREATED TO READ AS FOLLOWS:

Occasionally it will be desirable to place a new section in a certain area of a KRS chapter, to take advantage of existing definitions, penalties, or other provisions. In this case, the following form is used:

SECTION 12. A NEW SECTION OF KRS 80.620 TO 80.720 IS CREATED TO READ AS FOLLOWS:

Failure to place the new section within the desired range will mean that the range’s definitions and penalties do not apply to the new section.

If a chapter has been divided into subchapters (KRS Chapters 154 and 224), subtitles (KRS Chapters 271B and 304), or articles (KRS Chapter 355), the drafter needs to place a new section within a specific subchapter, subtitle, or article within the chapter. The introductory clause will look like this:

SECTION 20. A NEW SECTION OF SUBCHAPTER 30 OF KRS CHAPTER 154 IS CREATED TO READ AS FOLLOWS:

Drafters should not arbitrarily create an artificial range of statutes within which to place a new section. A range that is identified in an introductory clause should be a series of statutes enacted and placed together with common definitions and penalties.

Some sections of bills will not be codified as part of the Kentucky Revised Statutes. Appropriation sections, effective dates, emergency clauses, repealers, construction clauses, and temporary provisions are not compiled in statutes, and sections of the bill containing provisions of this type do not use the normal introductory clause. An appropriation, for instance, begins this way: “Section 21. There is appropriated ______.”

Sec. 208A. Repealing and Reenacting Existing Statutes

A section of the statutes may be repealed and reenacted, with or without changing its text. This procedure is described in KRS 446.145.

If a statute is repealed and reenacted with no changes, its text should be set forth in the bill without underlining, bracketing, or striking through any language. The introductory clause should follow this form:

Section 2. KRS _____ is repealed and reenacted (or “reenacted as a new section of KRS Chapter _____,” if appropriate) to read as follows:

If the bill reenacts and amends a section of the statutes and makes changes in its text, the new language should be underlined and the deleted language should be bracketed and struck through. The introductory clause should read like this:

Section 5. KRS _____ is repealed, reenacted (or “reenacted as a new section of KRS Chapter _____,” if appropriate), and amended to read as follows:

A section may be repealed and reenacted with totally new text. In that case, or if the new version of the section is so different that bracketing and underlining are impracticable, the whole of the new text should be set forth in the bill and underlined. The introductory clause should follow this form:

SECTION 1. KRS _____ IS REPEALED AND REENACTED (or “REENACTED AS A NEW SECTION OF KRS CHAPTER _____,” if appropriate) TO READ AS FOLLOWS:

Sec. 209. Body of the Bill

The principal functions of a statute are: 1) to create; 2) to impose a duty or obligation; 3) to prohibit; and 4) to confer a power or privilege.
The bill may contain any number of sections and provisions, so long as they all relate to the single subject expressed in the title. There is no limit to the number of details allowed in a bill or to its length. Every provision, however, must be germane to the subject of the bill. A bill that embraces two totally different subjects will be void. In cases of doubt, it is better to draft separate bills than to include provisions of questionable relationship to the title in a single bill.

The substance of a bill is divided into sections. Short sections enable the drafter to present ideas clearly, make the sense of the bill easier to grasp, and facilitate amendment by subsequent legislatures. Generally, each distinct proposition should be a separate section, divided into as many subsections as necessary. Section catchlines — the boldface phrases that precede KRS sections — are not shown within a bill draft but are added during codification.

Each amendment of an existing section of the statutes should be a separate section of the bill, commencing with an amending clause. Each new statute section created also should be a separate section of the bill. These rules apply even if the bill has only one section.

The minimum requirements for any bill are a title, an enacting clause, and a single section for the body. Longer and more comprehensive bills may be divided into a number of parts. If a bill has been divided into parts, sections of the bill should still be numbered in a single sequence throughout the bill, not numbered in separate sequences for each part.

The body of a bill should be set forth in an orderly arrangement, with a logical sequence of provisions. Rules of English composition should be observed, and the insertion of an unrelated provision in a section should not be tolerated. Good organization makes the bill easier to write, to understand, and to enforce. The more complicated the provisions, the more important it is to arrange them properly.

For bills creating a new range of statutes intended to be codified together as a distinct unit, the preferred arrangement of provisions is given below. Each part should constitute a separate section or sections of the bill.
1. New substantive provisions
   a. Definitions
   b. Main provisions
   c. Penalties
   d. Short title (if necessary)
2. Conforming amendments to existing statutes
   (in order by their KRS numbers)
3. Repeals
4. Appropriations
5. Temporary provisions and construction clauses
6. Emergency clause or special effective date

For bills whose provisions are spread out among several chapters and are not intended to be codified together, the drafter should arrange the sections in a logical manner to facilitate understanding of the operation of the bill. The suggested order is given below. Each part should constitute a separate section or separate sections of the bill.

1. Main substantive provisions (new and amended)
2. Conforming amendments to existing statutes
   (in order by their KRS numbers)
3. Repeals
4. Appropriations
5. Temporary provisions and construction clauses
6. Not-to-be-codified short title (if necessary)
7. Emergency clause or special effective date

Sec. 210. Penalties

Frequently, the sponsor of a statute wants sanctions imposed for its violation. Normally, these are criminal sanctions. In this case it is necessary to use particular care in writing the elements of the crime. If the elements of the crime are not clearly and simply stated, a court may be able to declare the statute unconstitutional due to vagueness. Thus, the format of the Penal Code (KRS Chapters 500 to 534) is frequently used. This is a strict outline format with the penalty as the last section.

If the drafter is adding a section to the Penal Code, he or she must utilize the Penal Code format and penalty structure. The penalty structure of the Penal Code is: capital offense, Class A felony, Class B felony, Class C felony, Class D felony, Class A misdemeanor, Class B misdemeanor, and violation. Capital offenses and felonies result in the death penalty or imprisonment in the penitentiary as possible penalties. Misdemeanors result in jail time, fines, or both. Violations result in fines only. The drafter should check the Penal Code for the specifics of each of these penalties.

If the drafter is creating a criminal offense elsewhere in the statutes, the Penal Code penalty structure or the Penal Code format is not controlling. In many chapters, the Penal Code format is used for the offense, while the penalty is found at the end of the chapter in a “.990” section.

Traditional penalties result in fines or imprisonment. In most cases, if the imprisonment is to be served in the penitentiary, the offense is a felony. If the imprisonment is to be served in the county jail, the offense is a misdemeanor. In Kentucky the practice has been that offenses with more than a year of imprisonment are felonies and those with sentences of up to one year are misdemeanors. There is no distinction in the amount of a fine between misdemeanors and felonies.

With regard to imprisonment, various qualifying terms may be used. Maximum sentences are always specified; sometimes minimum sentences are specified. Other terms include permitting the sentences to be served on weekends or other times convenient to the defendant. Sometimes statutes prohibit probating part of the sentence or increase the penalty for repeated offenses. Sometimes the first or second offense might be a misdemeanor and subsequent offenses felonies.

Fines provide a virtually unlimited source of variation. The most commonly used provisions are minimum and maximum fines, but others, such as requiring the fine to be double or triple the amount of gain from the commission of the offense, requiring the fine to be double or triple the damage caused, or making each day a separate offense for fine purposes, are also relatively common. Daily fines are particularly common in regulatory offenses where many defendants are wealthy and can afford to pay minor fines as a cost of doing business.

Additional monetary penalties, other than fines, are sometimes imposed. Court costs, restitution to victims (either in the amount stolen or in the amount of damage), making the defendant pay the costs of prosecution, requiring payment of a service fee to be divided among state agencies, and similar items have been required under state or federal law.

Various nonmonetary penalties have been imposed over the years and sometimes prove effective. Typical nonmonetary penalties include: seizure and forfeiture of property used to commit a crime; seizure and forfeiture of the proceeds of crime; seizure and forfeiture of things purchased with proceeds of the crime; revocation, suspension, or denial of licenses (motor vehicle operators, professional, occupational, etc.); forfeiture of public office; prohibition against holding public office; prohibition against engaging in certain professions or activities; required education, reeducation, or repassing of tests; required medical or psychological treatment (drug treatment for certain drivers, etc.); and prohibitions against engaging in certain types of business.

The type and range of penalty are virtually unlimited; however, several considerations emerge. The penalty must not be cruel or unusual. This constitutional prohibition generally refers to physical cruelty and torture. A more practical consideration is that the penalty chosen, or the combination of penalties chosen, should be designed to protect the public, deter criminal activity, and neither be so lenient or so strict as to be disproportionate. Penalties that are too lenient do not discourage criminal activity and may, in fact, enhance certain types of violations, particularly where the defendants can afford to pay a fine or to weather the penalty easily. In this case the fine or other penalty may become a permit fee for violation of the law. If the penalty is too strict or is felt to be disproportionate to the crime, the public, through jurors or judges, will not impose the penalty or will seek ways to get around its imposition through suspending the sentences or similar tactics. In this case, police and prosecutors quickly learn that the penalty will not be enforced, and enforcement may slacken.
In creating penalties that fit a crime, the drafter should look at the crime and look at the most frequent violators or potential violators of the law, and then consider what penalty would most likely deter the crime or constitute an adequate public sanction for its commission. Large fines, seizure of assets and property, and repayment of costs of prosecution may deter criminal activity by corporations or affluent defendants but have little meaning to those without financial resources. Imprisonment has an effect on anyone who might be incarcerated, and it can be utilized without regard to financial resources as a deterrent. Suspension or revocation of licenses has been found effective against professional misconduct in some cases.

Drafters need to think about the costs of imposing certain types of penalties, particularly incarceration. Imprisonment in the penitentiary creates a long-term cost for the state; imprisonment in a county jail creates a cost for county government. Thus, other programs are being used either in lieu of incarceration or as an adjunct thereto. For example, there are work-release programs for misdemeanants requiring inmates to pay all or part of the costs of incarceration; home incarceration programs requiring the defendants to stay in their homes with approved monitoring devices (which the defendants pay for); intensive probation; and community service.

Whichever penalty or combination of penalties is chosen, careful consideration of all of the above factors combined with careful drafting is necessary, as criminal statutes are more narrowly construed by the courts and are construed in favor of the defendant.

Sec. 211. Repeal Clause

One of the most important steps in drafting a bill is to study the statutes on the subject. If a bill conflicts with or supersedes existing statutes, the prior law should be expressly repealed.

Statutes to be repealed are specifically enumerated in a special section of the bill.

Section 15. The following KRS section is repealed:

202.200 Judge to prepare history of patient's case.
or

Section 15. The following KRS sections are repealed:

202.200 Judge to prepare history of patient’s case.

202.220 Commonwealth’s or county attorney to furnish information.

202.270 Pauper idiots, epileptic and harmless lunatics — disposition of.

The catchline of the section being repealed must appear alongside the section number, which must be checked carefully for accuracy. To repeal legislation enacted at the current session, name the bill number and the section number to be repealed.

It is important that the introductory clause for sections that are repealing statutes end with “repealed.” This is necessary for identification of these statutes in LRC’s computerized conflict-identification program. Also, each section being repealed must be listed as a separate indented paragraph; you may not specify a range of statutes or a complete chapter.

If KRS sections are to be repealed on a date other than the effective date of the bill, use an introductory clause like this:

Section 10. Effective January 1, 2008, the following KRS sections are repealed:

If a bill contains repeals that take effect on different dates, use a separate section for each date.

If your bill repeals any statutes, identify references in other statutes to the section being repealed. Use the computer to search the statutes. Those sections containing reference to repealed sections must be amended.

Prior law is not ordinarily revived when the law that repealed it is itself repealed. The old law cannot be reactivated by repealing the statute that superseded it.
When an existing statute section is repealed, the penalty section of the same chapter should be checked to determine if there are penalties for the section to be repealed; if so, they should be repealed.

The drafter should not rely on repeal by implication, because it requires the courts to decide if conflicts exist between the new and prior laws. A new law supersedes prior laws that are in direct conflict, but much confusion can be avoided by directly repealing conflicting laws or by amending them to conform.

To protect specific prior law from implied possible repeal, a bill may state that no conflict is intended. This should be done by a not-to-be-codified construction clause.

Section 19. This Act shall not be construed as repealing any of the laws of the Commonwealth relating to the pollution of the waters thereof, or any conservation or mining laws, but it shall be held and construed as ancillary and supplemental thereto.

Sec. 212. Effective Date or Emergency Clause

Legislation takes effect ninety days after the close of the session, unless the bill sets a later date or contains an emergency clause. The delay between passage and effect allows time for persons to become familiar with the law and to comply with its provisions.

An emergency clause requires the concurrence of a majority of members elected to each house. The phrase “and declaring an emergency” must be included in the title. The clause should constitute a legislative finding of the facts creating the emergency, and these facts should be stated.

Section 30. Whereas it is increasingly difficult to obtain the required number of qualified persons for jury service, an emergency is declared to exist, and this Act takes effect upon its passage and approval by the Governor or upon its otherwise becoming a law.

In some bills, it may be necessary to make the effective date correspond to the beginning of a fiscal year (July 1) or a calendar year, to expedite administration. A schedule of different effective dates for different sections may be established, if the act requires that administrative machinery be set up prior to full operation.

Section 40. This Act takes effect January 1, 2011.

or

Section 10. Sections 1 to 6 of this Act take effect July 1, 2011.

Any effective date earlier than ninety days after sine die adjournment makes the bill an emergency and will require a reason and concurrence of a majority of each chamber’s members.

A special-effective-date provision should ordinarily be the final section in a bill.

Sec. 213. General Guidance on Statutory Construction

General information and guidance on statutory construction may be found in KRS Chapter 446, which contains information on many diverse subjects. These rules of construction apply to the entire Kentucky Revised Statutes unless a specific statute specifies another type of construction. Reference to KRS Chapter 446 may eliminate the necessity to draft specialized construction provisions for a statute under consideration. Each bill drafter should be thoroughly familiar with the provisions of this chapter.

Sec. 214. Use of Bill Drafts from Previous Sessions

In some instances, the sponsor may request that a bill from a previous session of the General Assembly be prepared for introduction at a current session. The drafter must carefully check the previous draft to update any dates, references to agencies or officers, and other material in the bill necessary to bring the proposal into conformity with current conditions. Necessary constitutional and statutory checks should not be omitted since legislation or court decisions may have affected the proposal since the time of its original drafting.
Sec. 215

Use of Bill Drafts from Other Jurisdictions

A drafter can often find laws from other states that contain provisions that the drafter desires to include in a bill draft. In those cases, the drafter must be careful to make the necessary changes in the other state’s laws to make them conform with officers and agencies in Kentucky.

The bill drafter should check cases interpreting the other state’s law. If cases dealing with the constitutionality of the law are found, the drafter should check the Kentucky Constitution to determine if there might be a constitutional problem if the other state’s law were to be enacted in this jurisdiction.

The drafter should also contact the state agency that enforces the law to determine if there are problems with its administration. It may be helpful to contact the legislative service agency for information.
Sec. 301. Introduction

Bills should be drafted to attain the greatest possible accuracy and clearness of meaning, presented in unambiguous language. Simplicity is highly desirable when it can be achieved without loss of meaning. Observe accepted rules of form and grammatical construction, as in general composition. The United States Government Printing Office Style Manual may be used to check particular questions of style, or examples of the point in question may possibly be found in the latest official edition of the Kentucky Revised Statutes.

Bear in mind Lord Bryce’s observation: “In point of form, the merit of law consists of brevity, simplicity, intelligibility and certainty so that its provisions may be quickly found, easily comprehended, and promptly applied.”

Specific Rules on Drafting

Sec. 302. Language

Use correct English. Use language so clear that it conveys the same meaning to every intelligent reader.

Under KRS 446.015, all bills introduced in the General Assembly are required to be written “in nontechnical language in a clear and coherent manner using words with common and everyday meanings.”

Sec. 303. Use of “Shall” and “May”

A duty, obligation, or prohibition is best expressed by “shall,” and a power or privilege is best expressed by “may.” “Shall” should never be used to express the future. Its proper function is mandatory, and generally its use is permissible only when “must” or “has a duty to” could be substituted. In statutory usage “shall” does not denote the future tense any more than “may” does.
Sec. 304

Sec. 304. Tense and Mood

Use the present tense and the indicative mood. Avoid using the passive voice.

A statute is regarded as constantly speaking. It speaks as of the time when it is read or applied. It must, therefore, be written in the present tense, except for stating a condition precedent to its operation, which should be phrased in the perfect tense if it is required to be completed before the statute applies.

Sec. 305. Consistency and Parallelism

Use the same arrangement of text and the same form of expression throughout, unless the meaning requires variations.

Maintain parallelism in structure. For example, if a list of “the following duties” begins with gerunds (receiving, reviewing, issuing, etc.), do not shift to nouns (maintenance, licensure, etc.) or infinitives (to maintain, to license, etc.).

Sec. 306. Choice of Words and Phrases

Select short, familiar words and phrases that best express the intended meaning according to common and approved usage.

Do not use synonyms, and do not use the same word in different senses.

Use pronouns only if their antecedents are unmistakable.

Make free yet careful use of possessive nouns and pronouns.

Do not use the words “said,” “aforesaid,” “hereinabove,” “beforementioned,” “whatsoever,” or similar words of reference or emphasis.

Avoid using the word “such” as an adjective where an article or demonstrative pronoun may be used.

Do not use the expression “and/or.”

Do not use contractions.
Omit every needless word.

If a word has the same meaning as a phrase, use the word.

Use the shortest sentences that bring out the meaning intended.

Sec. 307. Gender-neutral Language

KRS 446.020(2) provides that “[a] word importing the masculine gender only may extend and be applied to females as well as males.” This widespread and long-standing drafting convention permits masculine pronouns (he, him, his) to be used in a generic sense including both men and women when referring to an antecedent that may be either a man or a woman (a person, the member, the Governor). Nevertheless, unless an unnecessarily lengthy, clumsy, or ambiguous construction would result, using the masculine pronouns to cover all persons can and should be avoided by drafting in a way to avoid the pronoun, by repeating the noun instead of using a pronoun, or by using -- in moderation -- both masculine and feminine pronouns together (“he or she,” “him or her,” “his or her”). Generally accepted gender-neutral terms (e.g., the chair, a reasonable person, workers’ compensation) should be preferred to gender-specific ones (the chairman, a reasonable man, workmen’s compensation), but artificial terms (waitperson, watchperson, personhole) or devices (s/he, he/she, she/he) that have not gained general acceptance should not be used in bill drafts.

Sec. 308. Punctuation

Punctuate carefully. Recast the sentence if a change in punctuation might change its meaning.

Ordinarily, use commas to separate the items in a series. Be sure to place a comma before the conjunction following the next-to-last item in the series (e.g., “red, white, and blue”; NOT “red, white and blue”). Omitting a comma before the conjunction can create an ambiguity. Use semicolons for series of items containing commas and at the end of elements that have been tabulated.

Parentheses should not ordinarily be used within statutory text.
In expressing a fraction in words, use a hyphen between the elements of the fraction, but omit this hyphen between the numerator and denominator of a fraction when a hyphen appears in either or both of these elements.

- one-tenth (1/10)
- three-fourths (3/4)
- seven one-hundredths (7/100)

- thirty-five sixtieths (35/60)
- twenty-two thirty-fifths (22/35)
- two-thirds (2/3) of an inch

Sec. 309. Spelling

Use the preferred standard spelling for words rather than variant forms. A list of preferred spellings for some commonly occurring words may be found as Appendix C to this manual.

Sec. 310. Definitions

Use definitions only

- when a word is used in a sense other than its dictionary meaning or is used in the sense of one of several dictionary meanings;
- to avoid repetition of a phrase; or
- to limit or extend the provisions of the act.

Do not write substantive provisions or artificial concepts into definitions.

If a bill contains a group of sections intended to be codified together as a distinct unit, place definitions at the beginning of that group of sections.

Once defined, use the defined word, not the definition.

Sec. 311. Expressions of Limitation

If a provision is limited in its application or is subject to an exception or condition, it will frequently promote clarity to begin the sentence with the limitation, exception, or condition, or with an expression calling attention to any limitation that follows.

For conditions, use “if,” not “when” or “where.”
Sec. 312. Provisos

Avoid “provided that” and “provided, however,” unless absolutely necessary. Never use these terms to introduce an additional statement that can be expressed in a separate sentence. The words “if” and “except” are much more exact and can often be used instead of “provided.”

Sec. 313. Section Breakdown

If a section covers a number of contingencies, alternatives, requirements, or conditions, break it down into subsections designated by Arabic numbers in parentheses. If necessary, break down subsections into paragraphs designated by small letters in parentheses. Do not break down a paragraph unless this is unavoidable. If a further breakdown is necessary, designate subparagraphs with Arabic numbers without parentheses. An illustration of the manner of breaking down a section is given as Example 1 in Appendix B.

Use separate sections for separable provisions.

Sec. 314. Purpose Clause or Policy Declaration

Many times lawyers and others desire to incorporate as a part of the law a so-called preamble or policy declaration. This practice is contrary to the highest standards of drafting. The only purpose such a provision can serve is to give the general purpose of the legislature in adopting the enactment. If the language of a bill is not sufficiently clear to make its purpose plain, it is not properly drafted. In most cases, do not create a section of the statutes for this type of clause.

Sec. 315. Severability or Separability Clause

A severability clause ordinarily is not necessary because both statute and common law make statute provisions severable. KRS 446.090 provides that if any part of a statute is held unconstitutional “the remaining parts shall remain in force, unless the statute provides otherwise, or unless the remaining parts are so essentially and inseparably connected with and dependent upon the unconstitutional part that it is apparent that the General Assembly would not have enacted the remaining parts without the unconstitutional part, or unless the remaining parts, standing alone, are incomplete and incapable of being executed ....”
Sec. 315

If a legislator insists upon such a clause, however, it should read as follows:

If any provision of this Act or the application thereof to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of the Act that can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this Act are severable.

If the legislator wants the bill to be nonseverable, the bill drafter should include a nonseverability clause.

Sec. 316. Short Title

A short title is not necessary for most bills, because legislation is commonly cited by statute number, not by title. A short title may be useful if a bill establishes a continuing program of considerable importance.

If a bill consists of a number of sections spread out among several chapters of the statutes, a short title given to the bill should not be enacted into codified law. The not-to-be-codified section creating the short title should ordinarily be placed at the very end of the bill, or as the next-to-last section if the bill contains an emergency clause or special effective date provision.

Section 20. This Act may be cited as the Interlocal Cooperation Act.

If a group of sections is to be codified together as a distinct unit in a single chapter of the statutes, any short title should be enacted into codified law as the last section of this group within the bill.

SECTION 10. A NEW SECTION OF KRS CHAPTER 213 IS CREATED TO READ AS FOLLOWS:

Sections 1 to 10 of this Act may be cited as the Kentucky Vital Statistics Act.

Sec. 317. Abbreviations

Abbreviations should be used sparingly if at all in a bill, except that the abbreviation “KRS” should always be used in citing particular sections of the Kentucky Revised Statutes. Sometimes, however, it is preferable and permissible to use an acronym for a federal agency or federal law when the name is used repeatedly in a bill. In that case, add a definition that specifies the acronym to be used in place of the formal name.

Sec. 318. Capitalization

In most cases, the rules contained in the Style Manual of the United States Government Printing Office govern capitalization in bill drafting for the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. This policy attempts to make statutory practice more nearly conform to “common and everyday” usage. A summary of major provisions of this policy is set out below. Appendix E provides a list of examples.

Capitals should be used for the following:

- Commonwealth, when referring to the Commonwealth of Kentucky;
- The first word of a sentence or of a formally introduced series of items or phrases following a colon;
- The first word of each entry of an enumeration paragraphed after a colon;
- The word “Act” for a particular legislative act and “Section xx” for a particular section within an act;
- The full or short title of a particular state or federal act;
- The words “Chapter,” “Article,” “Subchapter,” and “Subtitle” in references to specific divisions within the Kentucky Revised Statutes (e.g., KRS Chapter 224, Article 2A of KRS Chapter 355);
- The General Assembly, its component houses, the Legislative Research Commission, and legislative committees and task forces when their full names are used;
- The name of an executive department, commission, or agency when named in full;
- The Court of Justice and its component parts;
- Nouns or adjectives forming an essential part of a proper name, such as a particular county, river, or state; and
- Titles of elected public officials who are chosen for an office by a statewide vote or who exercise statewide jurisdiction or authority (e.g., the Commissioner of Agriculture).

Capitals should not be used for

- Appointive state officers; county, municipal, and district officers;
Sec. 318

Substitutes for official titles, such as the board, the court, the commissioner, except for “the Commission” when referring to the Legislative Research Commission;

The words “federal” and “state,” when not part of a proper name; or

The words “chapter,” “section,” “article,” “subchapter,” or “subtitle” when not followed by a number.

Sec. 319. Citations

All section and chapter references to the Kentucky Revised Statutes must be carefully checked for accuracy using the latest edition of the statutory database.

References to an existing range of statutes should be to “KRS xxx to xxx.” Do not use the word “through” in range references. Under KRS 446.120(2), when a reference is made to several sections connected by the word “to,” the reference includes both the sections whose numbers are given and all intervening sections.

Occasionally it is necessary to cite to a federal law or regulation. To cite to an entire title of the U.S.C. or C.F.R., you may use the format “as provided in Title 42 of the United States Code” or “as required by Title 19 of the Code of Federal Regulations.”

To cite to individual title sections, use the citation styles detailed below. In both cases, the first number cited is a reference to the specific title of the U.S.C. or C.F.R. containing the statute or regulation.

For citations to the United States Code, use these citation styles:

For citation to an individual section of a particular title of the law: 49 U.S.C. sec. 322;

For citations to more than one section of the law: 49 U.S.C. secs. 322 and 323 or 49 U.S.C. secs. 322 to 388; and

For citations to a block of consecutive sections of the law beginning with one statute and including all statutes to the end: 49 U.S.C. secs. 322 et seq.

For citations to Code of Federal Regulations, use these citation styles:

For citation to an entire Part of a particular title of the C.F.R.: 23 C.F.R. pt. 43;
For citation to an individual section of a part of the C.F.R.: 23 C.F.R. sec. 43.211;

For citation to more than one section of a part of the C.F.R.: 23 C.F.R. secs. 43.211 and 43.212; or 23 C.F.R. secs. 43.211 to 43.340; and

For citation to a block of consecutive sections of a part of the C.F.R. beginning with one regulation and including all regulations to the end: 23 C.F.R. secs. 43.445 et seq.

For C.F.R. cites, if a decimal appears in the last reference, it is a section. If there is no decimal, it is a part.

In most cases, it is not the best practice to cite to state administrative regulations since they may change to the extent that the will of the General Assembly in enacting or amending a statute is compromised. However, if a citation is insisted on, it should follow the format “801 KAR 4.170.”

Laws passed during an ongoing session are cited as “Senate Bill (or House Bill) xxx of the 2xxx Regular Session of the General Assembly,” using the number that appears on the enrolled copy.

A section of the Kentucky Constitution is cited as “Section xxx of the Constitution of Kentucky.”

As a general rule, for existing statutes that are included within a bill, it is better to cross-reference to them in new language by their section numbers with the bill than to use their KRS numbers. That is, it is better to say “Section 12 of this Act” than to say “KRS 156.760.” This puts the reader on notice that the statute in question is within the bill and gives him or her the section number where it can be found.

Drafters should be specific in making internal cross-references to provisions within a particular act. Do not use ambiguous phrases like “according to the provisions of this Act” or “as provided by this Act.” Instead, refer directly to the section or sections treating the matter, e.g., “according to Section 4 of this Act,”
“as provided by Sections 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8 of this Act.” In some cases, the reference may be made to “this chapter” or “this section.” Generalized references to “this Act” create difficulties in codification.

References to a range of sections within a particular bill (e.g., “as provided by Sections 6 to 10 of this Act”) should be used only if that group of sections is intended to be codified as a distinct unit within the Kentucky Revised Statutes with a common subject matter, definitions, penalties, and the like.

Sec. 320. Numbers

Cardinal numbers should ordinarily be expressed in words followed by a numeral enclosed in parentheses, except for

- section numbers within an act;
- citations to statutes, constitutional provisions, case reports, and the like;
- dates and times (as discussed in Sec. 321);
- numeric entries in a table or schedule; and
- numbers in noncodified text.

In expressing cardinal numbers in numeric parentheticals, ordinarily use common fractions instead of decimal fractions, e.g., one-half (1/2) not (0.5); four-tenths (4/10) not (0.4). For percentages with fractions, prefer decimal fractions, unless the fraction cannot be expressed as a terminating decimal, e.g., two and one-half percent (2.5%); one and one-fourth percent (1.25%); one-half of one percent (0.5%); but thirty-three and one-third percent (33-1/3%).

Ordinal numbers should be expressed in words without any numeric representation in parentheses, e.g., “the third reading of the ordinance,” not “the 3rd reading” or “the third (3rd) reading.”

Never use Roman numerals; Arabic numerals are preferred in all cases.

The general rule for cardinal numbers set out in paragraph 1 of this section applies to measurements, e.g., six (6) feet not six feet (6’); ten (10) inches not ten inches (10”).
Sec. 321. References to Time

Dates should be expressed as follows: June 2011; June and July 2011; June, July, and August 2011; and June 1, 2011. A comma always follows a full date (June 1, 2011, and …) unless it ends a sentence. For dates without a year, use “June 1” or “the first day of June”; never use “June 1st” or “the 1st day of June.”

Time should be expressed as follows: 2 p.m. not 2:00 p.m. or 2 o’clock p.m.; 2:30 p.m.; 12 noon not 12:00 noon or 12 p.m.; 12 midnight not 12:00 midnight or 12 a.m.

Sec. 322. Monetary Amounts

In the body of a bill, sums of money are expressed in words, with “dollars” or “cents” written out. A numeric representation should ordinarily be placed after the expression in words. In these parenthetical references, use the following forms: ($10) not ($10.00); ($0.50) not (50¢); ($0.001) not (1/10 of 1¢).

Figures may be used for an enumeration of monetary amounts, such as in the budget bills, in lists of fees, and in tables.

Other Stylistic Considerations

Sec. 323. Divisions Within a Bill

Each distinct subject should be a separate section of a bill, divided into subsections when necessary. There can be no definite rule as to how much should be placed in one section, but generally the contents of a section should correspond to the contents of a paragraph in ordinary composition.

Sec. 324. Sections

Each section of a bill begins with the word “Section,” spelled out in full and followed by an Arabic number, then followed by the appropriate introductory clause. Section headings describing the section, called “catchlines” are not part of the law and should not be used in a bill. They are supplied by the reviser when the law is incorporated into the Kentucky Revised Statutes. A section may be a complete paragraph or may be made up of several subsections, each beginning a paragraph designated by an Arabic number in parentheses.

Sections and subsections are numbered consecutively throughout the bill. The Reviser of Statutes has authority to rearrange sections when incorporating an act into the statutes.

Sec. 325. Subsections

Each subsection is usually a complete sentence or group of sentences. For enumerations, a subsection may be further divided into a series of paragraphs following a colon, each starting with lowercase letter in parentheses, indented, and all except the last paragraph ending with a semicolon. Paragraphs may also be used as independent divisions within a subsection.

The sections of a bill may be divided into subsections, paragraphs, subparagraphs, subdivisions, and subparts of subparagraphs. See Sec. 313. If a section seems to require further division beyond subparts of subdivisions, consider reconstructing it or arranging it into multiple sections.

Sec. 326. Words and Phrases

Select words and phrases carefully to attain clarity and precision of meaning. Use plain and unambiguous words, because laws are read by nonattorneys and nonspecialists, and they should be easily understood. Avoid ambiguous, indefinite, or superfluous words and phrases.

Sec. 327. Statutory Definitions

Certain words are defined by law (KRS 446.010) and apply to all statutes. These are some of those universal definitions:

Action includes all proceedings in any court;

Attorney means attorney at law;

Bequeath and devise are synonymous;
Bequest and legacy embrace either real or personal estates, or both;

Cattle includes horse, mule, ass, cow, ox, sheep, hog, and goat;

City includes town;

Company may include any person, partnership, joint stock company, or association;

Directors of corporations include managers and trustees;

Domestic corporation means one formed by authority of this state;

Federal refers to the United States;

Issue, as applied to the descent of real estate, includes all lawful lineal descendants;

Land or real estate includes lands, tenements, and hereditaments and all rights thereto and interest therein, other than a chattel interest;

Legatee and devisee are synonymous;

May is permissive, shall is mandatory;

Oath includes affirmation;

Peace officer includes sheriffs, constables, coroners, jailers, marshals, policemen, metropolitan and urban-county government correctional officers, and persons with similar authority to make arrests;

Penitentiary includes all state penal institutions except the houses of reform;

Person may extend to bodies politic and corporate, societies, communities, the public generally, individuals, partnerships, limited liability partnerships, joint stock companies, and limited liability companies;
Sec. 327

Personal estate includes chattels and real and other estate that passes to the personal representative upon the owner dying intestate;

Sworn includes affirmed;

United States includes territories, outlying possessions, and the District of Columbia;

Vacancy in office applies whether occasioned by death, resignation, removal, or otherwise;

Violate includes failure to comply with;

Will includes codicils.

Under KRS 446.020, a word importing the masculine gender may extend to females. For a discussion of gender-neutral language in the Kentucky Revised Statutes, see Sec. 307 of this manual.

Under KRS 446.020, a word importing the singular number may extend to several persons or things.

Sec. 328. Other Suggestions on Wording

Good drafting requires that ambiguous, redundant, or unnecessarily complicated terms be avoided. The following phrases do not add to the clarity or meaning of a bill and should not be used unless they are absolutely necessary:

This list of terms to avoid is neither complete nor binding in all cases. As a rule, however, prefer the simpler term to the more complex, and be as direct and explicit as possible.
Chapter 4

Special Types of Legislative Drafting

Sec. 401. Introduction

Some particular subjects of legislation recur frequently and require special treatment in drafting. This chapter treats drafting considerations in several of these areas.

Sec. 402. Constitutional Amendments

Constitutional amendments may be proposed in either house of the General Assembly at a regular session. If approved by three-fifths of all members elected to each house, the proposed amendment is submitted to the voters at the next general election for members of the House of Representatives. Not more than four amendments may be submitted at one time. An amendment may relate to one subject or to multiple related subject matters, and it may amend or modify as many articles or sections of the Constitution as necessary and appropriate to accomplish the objectives of the amendment (Const., § 256).

In Kentucky, constitutional amendments are drafted as bills, rather than as resolutions, although they do not require the Governor’s approval. The customary title for proposing an amendment is: “AN ACT proposing an amendment to Section xx of the Constitution of Kentucky relating to _______.”

A section proposing an amendment to the Constitution requires a special introductory clause. In most cases, the clause should resemble one of the following two examples:

Section 2. It is proposed that Section 157 of the Constitution of Kentucky be amended to read as follows:

or

SECTION 5. IT IS PROPOSED THAT A NEW SECTION BE ADDED TO THE CONSTITUTION OF KENTUCKY TO READ AS FOLLOWS:
Sec. 402

The final section of a bill proposing a constitutional amendment should read as follows:

Section 2. This amendment shall be submitted to the voters of the Commonwealth for their ratification or rejection at the time and in the manner provided for under Sections 256 and 257 of the Constitution and under KRS 118.415.

Unless otherwise provided in the resolution, constitutional amendments are effective upon ratification by the voters.

Sec. 403. Classification of Cities

In November 1994, the voters of Kentucky ratified a constitutional amendment that repealed former Section 156 of the Constitution, which provided for classification of cities into six classes based on population. The same amendment created a new Section 156a that authorizes the General Assembly to create “such classifications of cities as it deems necessary based on population, tax base, form of government, geography, or any other reasonable basis and enact legislation relating to the classifications” and provided that “[t]he classification of all cities and the law pertaining to the classifications in effect at the time of adoption of this section shall remain in effect until otherwise provided by law.” Because the General Assembly has not yet acted to provide for a new method of classification of cities, the classifications under the former Section 156 are still in effect.

Section 156 of the Constitution established six classes of cities and directed the General Assembly to assign cities to the classes to the appropriate classes, changing assignments as the population of cities changes. The classes, set by the Constitution, are as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Class</th>
<th>Population</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1st class</td>
<td>100,000 or more</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2nd class</td>
<td>20,000 to 99,999</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3rd class</td>
<td>8,000 to 19,999</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4th class</td>
<td>3,000 to 7,999</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5th class</td>
<td>1,000 to 2,999</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6th class</td>
<td>less than 1,000</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Cities are assigned to the proper class according to their population, as shown by the last federal census.

The usual form of bills to change the classification of cities is as follows:

AN ACT changing the classification of the City of Silver Grove, in Campbell County.

WHEREAS, satisfactory information has been presented to the General Assembly that the population of the City of Silver Grove, in Campbell County, is such as to justify its being classified as a city of the fifth class;

NOW, THEREFORE,

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

Section 1. The City of Silver Grove, in Campbell County, is transferred from the sixth to the fifth class of cities.

Under KRS 81.032 to 81.036, prior to the reclassification of a city by the General Assembly, the legislative body must provide a certified resolution of the population to the General Assembly. This resolution must include the population of the area based on the most recent United States census. However, a city may by affidavit submit information showing new growth since the last census. The city must show by documentation that it meets the population requirements of Kentucky Constitution Section 156 in order to be reclassified.

The estimated population data and the constitutional population range for the requested class must be recorded with the summary of the legislative proposal in the official record of the General Assembly.

If the city is reclassified, the General Assembly must provide the Secretary of State with notice of the reclassification and a copy of the certified information presented to the General Assembly.

Sec. 404. Judicial Legislation

Sections 112 and 113 of the Constitution provide that the General Assembly, upon certification of the necessity therefor by the Supreme Court, may reduce, increase, or rearrange the judicial districts and circuits. No county may be divided in making these districts and circuits. Additionally, upon certification of the necessity therefor by the Supreme Court, the number of District and Circuit Judges may be increased or decreased.

Bills creating or changing judicial circuits commence with a preamble. Then, following the enacting clause, they amend the statutes to provide for the new circuit, create the new division of an existing circuit, or make the other desired changes. For bills creating new circuits, provision must be made for the election of the new judge and Commonwealth’s attorney, along with provision necessary to protect the present Commonwealth’s attorney.

Licensing Boards. In drafting a bill creating a licensing or regulatory board, a good model to follow is KRS Chapter 323, Architects.

Advisory Commissions. A good model for a bill creating an advisory commission is KRS 174.200 to 174.210, the Water Transportation Advisory Board.

When providing staggered terms for the initial members of a new board or commission, consider placing the staggering provisions in a separate section of the bill that is not to be codified. It should be remembered that the maximum term of office, unless the Constitution specifies otherwise, is four years.

Sec. 406. Authority to Promulgate Administrative Regulations

KRS Chapter 13A establishes a detailed procedure for the promulgation of administrative regulations by executive agencies and for their review by the legislative branch. The drafter should keep in mind the following points when granting an entity the authority to promulgate administrative regulations.

Draft in terms of “administrative regulations.” Do not use “regulations” or “rules and regulations.” Do not authorize an administrative body to promulgate “policies and procedures.” If necessary, authorize it “to establish policies or procedures by the promulgation of administrative regulations in accordance with the provisions of KRS Chapter 13A.”

Grant authority to “promulgate” administrative regulations. Do not use “adopt” or “promulgate and adopt” as the empowering verb.

The following examples illustrate specific authorizations for the promulgation of administrative regulations.

The [administrative body] shall implement the provisions of Sections 1 to 10 of this Act through the promulgation of administrative regulations in accordance with the provisions of KRS Chapter 13A.

The [administrative body] shall establish license fees by the promulgation of administrative regulations in accordance with provisions of KRS Chapter 13A.
Sec. 406

_The [administrative body] shall establish the procedure for appeals of its decisions by the promulgation of administrative regulations in accordance with provisions of KRS Chapter 13A._

If a bill draft establishes every requirement relating to a specific subject, do not authorize or require the administrative body to promulgate administrative regulations establishing those requirements. For example, if a bill draft establishes age requirements for licensure, the types of licensure, continuing education requirements, disciplinary matters, appeals, and fees, do not authorize the administrative body to cover these same topics by administrative regulation. If the draft contains a comprehensive scheme only as to some topics, limit the authority to promulgate administrative regulations to those areas of the agency’s jurisdiction not within the comprehensive scheme.

The authority to promulgate administrative regulations is required, even in detailed bill drafts, if an administrative body is required to comply with federal requirements or chooses to adopt the standards established by national professional or standards organizations.

If prior approval of an administrative body’s proposed administrative regulation by another administrative body or state official is required, state this clearly.

_The cabinet shall submit the Kentucky Emergency Operations Plan to the Governor for approval and promulgation._ (Here, the Governor is to promulgate the administrative regulation.)

_Before filing a proposed administrative regulation containing the Kentucky Emergency Operations Plan, the agency shall submit the plan to the Governor for approval._ (Here, the Governor must approve the regulation, but the agency is the promulgating authority.)

When a statute sets out a fee schedule with specificity, there is no need for authority to be granted for the establishment of fees by administrative regulation. If a bill’s sponsor wants an administrative body to establish fees for certain items, specific authority should be set out to promulgate administrative regulations for these fees, and, if desired by the sponsor, a ceiling for these fees may be set out in the enabling statute.
(1) By administrative regulation promulgated in accordance with the provisions of KRS Chapter 13A, the board shall establish fees for:
   (a) Initial licensure;
   (b) Licensure renewal;
   (c) Examinations; and
   (d) Continuing education courses.

(2) No fee shall exceed two hundred fifty dollars ($250).

(Language similar to subsection (2) should be used if the sponsor desires a ceiling to be set.)

In preparing a bill draft, the drafter should discuss with a bill’s sponsor what areas, if any, the sponsor wishes to leave to the discretion of an administrative agency through the promulgation of administrative regulations. Areas for consideration include fees and fee ceilings, hearing procedures, the establishment of forms, and what official or administrative body is to be given the authority to promulgate administrative regulations.

Sec. 407. Bills Confirming Reorganizations

Under KRS 12.028(5), a temporary reorganization that is not confirmed by the General Assembly at the next regular session after its issuance terminates ninety days after sine die adjournment of that session. That subsection also provides that “[t]he subject matter of each executive order relating to reorganization shall be presented to the General Assembly in a separate bill.” Where a subsequent reorganization amends an earlier one and cannot stand on its own, the plans together constitute in effect a single subject matter and should be treated in a single bill.

The complexity of the bill draft confirming a reorganization can vary from a single noncodified section to a lengthy bill with both codified and noncodified sections. This will vary depending upon how involved the reorganization is and whether existing statutes need to be amended or repealed or new statutes need to be created to treat organizational units or administrative bodies dealt with in the reorganization.

The promulgating authority is required by KRS 12.028(5) to recommend legislation to the General Assembly to confirm a temporary reorganization plan. It is the assigned LRC bill drafter’s responsibility in putting the authority’s recommendation into a bill draft to locate statutes that need to be amended or repealed, to determine if new statutes need to be created, and to make sure that the noncodified provisions within the bill are in proper form and cover all necessary matters. Below are some specific points that the drafter should remember in preparing a bill draft confirming an executive reorganization:

Title. The title of reorganization bill drafts is typically “AN ACT relating to reorganization.” It is not necessary to include in the title the name of the organizational unit or administrative body or the number of the executive order being confirmed.

KRS 12.020. This statute lists the departments, program cabinets and their departments, and major administrative bodies in the executive branch of state government. It will need to be amended to reflect the elimination or change of name of any entity already listed within it or to add any new entity that is created in a reorganization bill that is of the level shown by the listing. Departments and major offices within a cabinet are shown in this outline; organizational units at a level lower than departments (e.g., divisions, branches, sections, units) are not set out in KRS 12.020. Boards, authorities, commissions, and other entities with regulatory or decisional powers are set out under the organizational unit to which they are attached for administrative purposes; advisory boards and commissions are not included within the statute’s listing.

Search for Affected Statutes. If the reorganization order eliminates or changes the name of any entity, the drafter should search for that entity’s name in the statutory database to see if there are any statutes with references to that name that need to be included in the bill for amendment or repeal. In doing this, the drafter should search by using the main subject within a name (e.g., “Child Support Enforcement” rather than “Division of Child Support Enforcement”). Sometimes entities’ names are shown in an inverted or abbreviated form (e.g., Economic Development Cabinet) or in a combined form (the Economic Development and Labor Cabinets), and using the full name of an entity as the search phrase will not find these references. While using a key element within a name as the search phrase may result in a number of false hits, it should find any variant forms that a full name search would miss. It is a good idea for the drafter to leave a sheet in the bill folder indicating the names of entities searched with the statute numbers of relevant statutes found in the search.
What Needs To Be Codified? The entire organizational structure of a cabinet is not set out in the statutes. Departments and major offices of a cabinet listed in KRS 12.020 typically are set out in a statute in the specific chapter that deals with that cabinet. Divisions within departments are often set out for cabinets that have major regulatory or administrative authority. One possible test for determining whether or not to include a newly created organizational unit within a cabinet’s statutory structure is to see if its predecessor is referenced in existing statutes setting out duties, imposing obligations, or protecting rights. It may also be necessary to provide for a new unit in a cabinet’s statutory structure if the reorganization plan requires the creation of new statutes to treat new duties, obligations, or rights involving that unit.

The creation of a new administrative body may require the enactment of new statutes if that body is permanent in nature and has continuing and significant responsibilities, e.g., an oversight function, the development and periodic review of standards, or the promulgation of administrative regulations on a subject.

The Noncodified Provision Confirming the Executive Order. At or near the end of each reorganization bill confirming an executive order, there should be a noncodified section specifically dealing with the underlying executive order or resolution. Under KRS 12.028, the Governor, other elected state executive officers, and the Kentucky Economic Development Partnership may make a temporary reorganization. The executive order or resolution should be identified with specificity. For gubernatorial reorganizations, use “Executive Order xx-xx, dated (month, day, and year).”

If a reorganization bill deals with organizational units that do not need to be set out in the statutes and if the bill does not require the amendment, repeal, or creation of any statutes, a single noncodified section may be all that is necessary to confirm the reorganization. This section should describe generally what the executive order involves but should not include all of its terms and provisions. For example, 1994 Ky. Acts ch. 115 has only the following provision:

Section 1. The General Assembly hereby confirms Executive Order 92-502, dated May 19, 1992, which changes the name of the Division of Program Services within the Department of Local Government to the Division of Administrative Services. The Division of Administrative Services shall be responsible for all the administration... and fiscal programs of the department, including personnel and payroll administration and computer support.

If a reorganization bill requires that some statutes be amended, repealed, or created to effectuate its confirmation, then the noncodified section confirming the executive order should include a qualifier (“to the extent it is not otherwise confirmed by this Act”). An example of this is found in 1996 Ky. Acts ch. 263, here slightly modified:

Section 2. The General Assembly confirms Resolution 95-1 of the Kentucky Economic Development Partnership, relating to the reorganization of the Department of Financial Incentives, to the extent it is not otherwise confirmed by this Act, this resolution having been made by the Kentucky Economic Development Partnership under the powers and authorities granted to the partnership by KRS 154.10-010, 154.10-030, and 12.028.

In acting on a reorganization plan, the General Assembly may make changes to it, either in to-be-codified or in noncodified sections. When changes are made, the qualifier in the noncodified section confirming the underlying executive order should read “to the extent it is not otherwise confirmed or superseded by this Act.” Here is an example of this situation from 1996 Ky. Acts ch. 310:

Section 6. The General Assembly confirms Executive Order 94-6, dated January 3, 1994, to the extent it is not otherwise confirmed or superseded by this Act.

Other Noncodified Provisions. It may be necessary to include provisions in noncodified language to deal with transition between organizational units or administrative bodies, the terms of members of an administrative body, or other temporary matters. 1996 Ky. Acts ch. 310 contains the following examples:

Section 7. Upon establishment of this commission, the KentuckyServe Advisory Board created by Executive Order 93-86 shall be disbanded and its duties to oversee the KentuckyServe effort are hereby delegated to the new commission.

Section 8. The initial membership of the Kentucky Community Service Commission shall consist of those individuals appointed by the Governor in Executive Order 94-6, dated January 3, 1994, and the terms of these initial members shall expire on the dates set out in that order.
Sec. 408. Appropriations

An appropriation authorizes a state agency to spend a maximum sum of money from a named fund source in a specified fiscal year for a specified purpose. Appropriation amounts are expressed in numeric dollar amounts. The state fiscal year begins July 1 and extends through the following June 30. Therefore, appropriations are accomplished by means of noncodified provisions and not by the creation or amendment of statutes, since they are not intended to be permanent law. As such, budget bills are effective only for the duration of a biennium. Under KRS 45.229, funds unexpended at the end of a fiscal year lapse to the credit of the general fund surplus account. If it is desired that an unexpended balance carry forward to the next fiscal year, KRS 45.229 must be specifically suspended to direct that carryforward. Below is an example of an appropriation provision including the elements discussed in this paragraph.

There is appropriated to the Department of Parks from the General Fund $2,000,000 in fiscal year 2002-2003 and $1,000,000 in fiscal year 2003-2004 for the Park Entrance Beautification Program. Notwithstanding KRS 45.229, any General Fund appropriation unexpended at the end of fiscal year 2002-2003 shall not lapse but shall be carried forward into the next fiscal year.

Annual appropriations of funds from the State Treasury typically are contained in the biennial branch budget bills and budget amendments drafted by staff in LRC’s Budget Review Office either as a line-item entry for a budget unit or included in a language provision following a budget unit’s line-item entries. However, appropriations may also be made by inclusion of an appropriations section in other bills or amendments to other bills to implement a statutorily created program or legislative mandate. Usually, however, if a bill containing an appropriations section will be passed, that section will be deleted prior to passage, and the appropriation will be accommodated in the relevant biennial branch budget bill.

Appropriations may affect two budget areas of state agencies: the operating budget, containing administration and program expenditures; and the capital projects budget, containing capital construction, renovation, and lease expenditures, purchases of equipment, and issuance of bonds and necessary debt service amounts. The standard unit for appropriation is a department or agency, but sometimes a division, program, or group of consolidated organizational units within a department or cabinet may constitute an appropriation unit in the operating budget. Appropriations may not be transferred from one appropriation unit to another unit unless authorized by the budget bill, by charges for services, by statute, or by provisions of a temporary reorganization order. Capital projects or debt service appropriations may not be used for another purpose. Operating budget appropriation amounts are rounded to the nearest $100, and capital projects budget appropriation amounts are rounded to the nearest $1,000.

The fund sources of appropriations in the operating budget consist of the general fund, the road fund, restricted funds accounts, and federal funds accounts.

- The general fund consists of tax revenue collected under general tax laws and other designated receipts available for the activities, operations, and services of state government.

- The road fund consists of moneys from excise or license taxes relating to gasoline or other motor fuel products, and moneys derived from fees and excise or license taxes relating to registration, operation, or use of vehicles on public highways. Section 230 of the Kentucky Constitution dedicates those revenues for highways and bridges, vehicle regulation, and related state administrative purposes.

- Restricted funds are moneys collected by state agencies that are restricted by statute or a budget bill for expenditure toward general or specific uses by an agency. Restricted funds sources include regulatory or occupational licenses and fees, tuition, service charges, sales of goods or products, donations or grants from nonstate sources, and expendable receipts and earnings of trust-type programs. If a statute directs that an agency’s restricted funds be used only for specific purposes, and an appropriation directs that they be used for a different purpose, the directing statute must be specifically suspended to permit the alternative use of those funds.

- Federal funds are moneys received by state agencies in the form of grants, contracts, or other assistance from the federal government for a specified purpose.

Capital projects requiring legislative appropriations and subsequent interim review by the Capital Projects and Bond Oversight Committee include capital... construction projects or information technology systems with a cost of $400,000 or more, equipment with a cost of $100,000 or more, a lease with an annual rental cost of $200,000 or more, and construction with an annual use allowance of $200,000 or more (judicial branch only). They are primarily funded from the capital construction fund, which consists of moneys appropriated under KRS 45.750 to 45.800, but may also be funded with state or agency bond issues, investment income, or other funds from private sources. If a capital project appropriation’s funding source is bond funds, the corresponding debt service amount must also be reflected in the Operating Budget figures for that particular agency. Coal severance tax projects are funded from the local government economic development fund from the respective single county fund or from general-fund-supported bond funds for public purposes in coal-producing counties.

Due to the complex nature and importance of operating and capital projects budget appropriations, drafters without expertise in the budget area who receive a request to provide for such appropriations in bill drafts or amendments should first consult with the Assistant Statute Reviser in LRC’s Budget Review Office. The Assistant Statute Reviser will then assist the drafter or coordinate assistance given to the drafter by other Budget Review or Capital Projects staff in the completion of the request.

(A note on capitalization: In the codified text of the Kentucky Revised Statutes, the initial letters in the names of funds are not generally capitalized. Thus the statutes speak of “the general fund” and of “the local government economic development fund.” But in the branch budget bills and in noncodified appropriations sections of other bills, the names of funds usually have initial capital letters.)

Sec. 409.  Administrative Hearings

KRS Chapter 13B, which contains KRS 13B.005 to 13B.170, the Albert Jones Act, was created to provide uniform statutory procedures for administrative agencies to follow when conducting statutorily required or permitted administrative hearings. KRS 13B.010 defines “administrative agency” as each state board, bureau, cabinet, commission, department, authority, office, or other entity in the executive branch of state government authorized to conduct administrative hearings. “Administrative hearing” is also defined in that statute as any type of formal adjudicatory proceeding conducted by an administrative agency as required or permitted by statute or administrative regulation to adjudicate the legal rights, duties, privileges, or immunities of a named person. KRS 13B.020 provides that KRS Chapter 13B applies to all administrative hearings conducted by an agency, except those specifically exempted in one of the agency’s KRS sections. KRS 13B.125 permits an agency to take emergency action affecting the legal rights, duties, privileges, or immunities of named person without a hearing only if duly authorized by the agency’s statutes to so act. KRS 13B.140 requires that any final order of an agency following a hearing be subject to judicial review, and permits parties to appeal to the Circuit Court of venue, as provided in the agency’s enabling statutes, or if the statutes do not specify a venue for the appeal, in the Circuit Court in which the appealing party resides or operates a place of business. Section 111 of the Constitution of Kentucky provides that the General Assembly may authorize a direct appeal from an agency to the Court of Appeals, so if the sponsor wishes the agency to have that option, the statute would need to grant that authority. KRS 13B.160 then provides for a further appeal of the Circuit Court’s ruling to the Court of Appeals.

The statutes discussed above should give bill drafters establishing administrative agencies or amending existing agency statutes food for thought in formulating a bill, so far as its attention to the provision of due process of law to persons affected by the agency’s actions, which is the goal of the statutes providing for administrative hearings. Constitutional due process concerns, for example, are prompted by the denial, suspension, or revocation of a license, permit, or certification or the imposition of a penalty for violation of or noncompliance with a statutory or regulatory provision.

First, the drafter would need to determine whether KRS Chapter 13B’s provisions would apply to the agency and the hearings it conducts, or whether they are specifically exempted from its application either by existing law or should be exempted by adding the agency or its hearings to the statutory listing of exempted agencies and hearings. Or, on the other hand, the sponsor may want to remove an exempted agency or its hearings from the list of statutory exemptions. If the sponsor wants the bill to specify how the agency’s hearings are to be conducted rather than have KRS Chapter 13B’s provisions govern them, the bill needs to specifically say that and set out the procedures to be followed instead. Further, if the agency would be permitted to take emergency action concerning a person’s legal rights, duties, privileges, or immunities without a hearing, the bill would need to provide that authority in statute. Likewise, if an agency’s final order is to be appealable to a specific Circuit Court, the bill would need to provide that direction.

In the absence of special circumstances like those noted in the previous paragraph, the drafter would simply need to give the agency statutory authority to conduct hearings as necessary and require that all hearings be conducted in accordance with the provisions of KRS Chapter 13B.
Chapter 5

Form of Resolutions

Sec. 501. Introduction

Resolutions are expressions of the opinion, sentiment, or will of the General Assembly. They need not meet the requirements for passage prescribed by the Constitution, unless they have the force and effect of law, in which case they are treated as bills in all respects. The Constitution requires that all resolutions requiring a vote of both houses, except those on a question of adjournment or constitutional amendment, must be sent to the Governor for approval or veto (Const., §§ 89, 256).

There are three types of resolutions: simple, concurrent, and joint. The drafter should exercise great care in selecting the right kind for the purpose to be accomplished. The type of resolution chosen determines the legislative action required, and use of an incorrect form may delay the progress of the resolution in the General Assembly.

A resolution consists of a title, a preamble, a resolving clause, and a body.

The title states the type and subject of the resolution. It should be clear and concise, giving a fair description of the resolution’s content.

The preamble (one or more paragraphs that begin with the word “WHEREAS”) sets forth the situation or condition concerning which the resolution proposes action. Language in a preamble may be more rhetorical than in other forms of legal composition, but florid or discursive writing has no place in a resolution.

The resolving clause (“Be it resolved...”) is equivalent to the enacting clause of a bill and must be included in the exact form shown in the examples below. The form of the resolving clause depends on the kind of resolution and whether the action of one or both houses is required.
Sec. 501

The paragraphs that come after the resolving clause set forth the action proposed and are equivalent to the body of a bill. They comprise the matter that is resolved by the General Assembly.

Sec. 502. Simple Resolutions

A simple resolution deals with the affairs of one house only and requires action only by the legislative chamber concerned. It is used to

- express an opinion or principle of one house;
- express an opinion or request to another branch of state government;
- regulate procedure and conduct of the body; or
- convey to the Legislative Research Commission a request for services or recommendation for action.

A sample simple resolution is below.

A RESOLUTION declaring January 31, 2008, to be Kentucky Adult Education Day.

WHEREAS, a fully skilled adult population is necessary for the development of Kentucky's economy; and

WHEREAS, adult education enhances and expands economic growth in Kentucky;

NOW, THEREFORE,

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

Section 1. This honorable body declares January 31, 2011, to be Kentucky Adult Education Day.

Section 2. The Clerk of the House of Representatives is directed to transmit a copy of this Resolution to John Doe, 123 Main Street, Lexington, Kentucky 40507.
Sec. 503. Concurrent Resolutions

A concurrent resolution expresses principles and opinions of the legislature. It is without force outside the confines of the General Assembly and is used to

- authorize expenditure of legislative funds;
- authorize interim committees;
- authorize joint rules, sessions, or committees;
- express the General Assembly’s recognition of service or sorrow over a death;
- memorialize Congress or a federal agency;
- call upon Congress to propose an amendment to the United States Constitution;
- notify the Governor of the organization or adjournment of the General Assembly;
- receive messages; or
- direct the Legislative Research Commission to conduct a study or investigation.

Below is an example of the form for a concurrent resolution.

A CONCURRENT RESOLUTION requesting and petitioning the United States Department of Agriculture to provide free seeds for the restoration of pastures and meadows in Kentucky destroyed by the drought of 1953.

WHEREAS, the severe drought of 1953 caused such damage to and destruction of the pastures and meadows of Kentucky as to constitute the entire state a disaster area;

NOW, THEREFORE,
Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, the Senate concurring therein:

Section 1. The Department of Agriculture of the United States is....

Concurrent resolutions are used for legislative study resolutions. This topic is discussed in Sec. 506 of this manual.

Sec. 504. Joint Resolutions

A joint resolution generally has the force and effect of law and is treated as a bill in the parliamentary process, but it deals with individual, unusual, temporary, or subordinate legislation. It is used to

- accept gifts or grants made to the state;
- designate the state poet laureate, etc.;
- give specific directions to some state officer or agency;
- refer a matter to the people for referendum;
- ratify a proposed amendment to the United States Constitution;
- call for a United States Constitutional Convention to be convened; or
- direct an executive agency to conduct a study.

- Below is the proper form for a joint resolution.

A JOINT RESOLUTION authorizing and directing a comprehensive study of the workers’ compensation program in Kentucky, and making an appropriation therefor.

WHEREAS, it is the responsibility of the legislature to guarantee a workers’ compensation system to provide adequate benefits to injured workers at a fair and equitable rate to employers; and
WHEREAS, disabled workers and their families in Kentucky must subsist on a maximum of $131 per week; and

WHEREAS, many serious questions have been raised regarding the ratemaking procedures utilized by the National Council on Compensation Insurance (NNCI) especially in the areas of classification and experience rating; and

WHEREAS, it has been reported that the results of an audit of the National Council directed by the state of South Carolina raised serious questions about the ratemaking procedures used by the National Council and the adequacy of its rates;

NOW, THEREFORE,

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

Section 1. The Governor shall hire a consulting firm to conduct a comprehensive study of the state’s workers’ compensation program. The consulting firm shall be charged with the responsibility to study and make recommendations on:

(1) The procedures utilized by the National Council on Compensation Insurance in workers’ compensation rate calculation, with particular emphasis on the fairness and adequacy of the classification and experience rating systems;

(2) The level of workers’ compensation premiums as compared to premium levels in other jurisdictions, using reasonable and reliable factors for comparison;

(3) The development of computer systems within Kentucky to effectively monitor the workers’ compensation program in Kentucky;

(4) The feasibility of creating a competitive state fund or alternative system as another method available for purposes of insuring liability under KRS Chapter 342; and

(5) The feasibility of creating a competitive pricing mechanism for workers’ compensation rates in Kentucky.
Sec. 505

Sec. 505. Special Types of Resolutions

Many resolutions concern petitions to federal or state agencies, directives to state agencies, or requirements for studies to be conducted. The following suggestions reflect usage and custom in the first two of these cases. Study resolutions are treated in Sec. 506.

Petitions. Concurrent resolutions may be used to request Congress or some federal agency to take specific action to remedy a situation. The preamble describes the problem to be remedied. The resolution requests specific action and directs the clerk to forward copies of the request to the persons petitioned or memorialized.

Directives to State Agencies. The General Assembly may use a joint resolution to direct specific action by a state agency.

Sec. 506. Study Resolutions

Form of Study Resolutions. Resolutions directing studies should be either concurrent resolutions or joint resolutions, depending upon their nature and content as discussed below. Simple resolutions should be avoided because they express the sentiment of one chamber only, sometimes creating a false expectation for the sponsor that the study will be conducted. Bills should only be used when a study or the creation of a task force to perform a study is part of a larger initiative that must be expressed as a bill or when an appropriation is necessary to have the study performed.

Concurrent resolutions should be used for legislative studies pursuant to Senate and House Rules 64, unless there is a specific appropriation attached to the study. It is a rare occurrence for an appropriation to be attached to studies done in-house. Generally, the cost of LRC studies comes from the regular LRC budget. In the event that a legislative study does include a specific appropriation, then a bill, instead of a resolution, should be used, since appropriations can only be made by enactment of a law.

Joint resolutions should be used for executive branch studies or judicial branch studies.
The Opening Sections of a Study Resolution. The preamble (“WHEREAS” clauses) of a study resolution should provide background on why the study is being proposed.

The resolving clause should be in the correct form for the type of resolution being drawn.

After the resolving clause, the body of the study resolution should begin in Section 1 with an initial statement directing or requesting the appropriate entity (LRC, an interim joint committee, a statutory committee, a task force/special committee, etc.) to perform the study. The initial statement should also set out the purpose of the study. Options are to

- direct or request LRC to have a study conducted;
- direct or request LRC staff to conduct a study;
- direct or request LRC to have an interim joint committee or statutory committee conduct a study;
- direct or request LRC to establish a task force/special committee to conduct a study; or
- direct an executive or judicial branch entity to conduct a study.

All of the study requests noted above, except those directing or requesting LRC staff to conduct a study, will require LRC action after the session, which may delay the study start date.

Section 2 of the body of the study resolution should define the membership of the study entity if the study entity is a legislative task force, a legislative special committee, any executive or judicial branch entity, or any legislative group other than LRC or an interim or statutory committee.

Membership of Legislative Task Forces/Special Committees (not for studies by LRC staff or interim or statutory committees). When creating legislative task forces/special committees, the following preferences should be followed as possible, given requirements set by the sponsor:
It should be stated that the task force is “of the Legislative Research Commission.”

In defining membership, remember that normally all appointments to legislative task forces should be made by LRC, or by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House making individual appointments. These are legislative entities. LRC or its co-chairs are the appropriate appointing authorities, although others may recommend appointments to LRC or to the President and Speaker. In order of preferred approach, members should be appointed in the following manner: 1) Members and chairs appointed by LRC; 2) President and Speaker appoint or nominate specific members, appointments to be ratified by LRC; or 3) Specific members, and Senate co-chair, appointed by the President of the Senate; specific members, and House co-chair, appointed by the Speaker of the House. (On occasion, if this method is used, the Minority Floor Leaders can also be given ability to make some appointments.)

Please keep the following in mind when providing for members outside the legislative branch: 1) An ex officio designation is often accompanied with the language “or designee.” This is permissible. 2) Appointment by LRC or the President and Speaker from lists submitted by outside groups is permissible but should be avoided when possible. When such lists are required, practice has shown that obtaining the lists can significantly delay the appointment process and, therefore, the work of the task force. LRC or the President and Speaker can be left to appoint members of specified groups without the necessity of requiring that lists be submitted.

Regardless of specification for membership appointment, it is preferred that language be included stating that “final membership of the task force is subject to the consideration and approval of the Legislative Research Commission.”

Resolutions should provide for LRC or the President and Speaker (as applicable) to appoint the co-chairs of the task force from among the legislative members, one a Senator and one a Representative. The co-chairs of a legislative task force should always be members of the General Assembly.
Note that the above membership instructions do not apply to studies directed to executive or judicial branch entities. The membership of executive or judicial branch task forces should be identified in the resolution (preferably a joint resolution) or bill that directs the study.

Operations of Interim Joint Committee, Statutory Committee, or Task Force/Special Committee Designated to Undertake Study. There is no need to mention expenses for most legislative studies directed by resolutions. LRC has guidelines in place for per diem and expense payments to legislators and nonlegislators, as appropriate. These will automatically apply. Bills directing studies by executive or judicial branch entities may include an appropriation if the sponsor instructs.

Statutory law and LRC policy contemplate monthly meetings of interim joint committees and task forces/special committees from June through November of the calendar year. The Legislative Research Commission must specifically approve meetings of greater frequency. It is recommended that study resolutions be drafted to be consistent with this practice.

Interim joint committees, statutory committees, and task forces/special committees do not have the authority to retain consultants on their own. If the need for a consultant is anticipated, the resolution should recognize the authority of LRC to retain the consultant upon recommendation of the committee or task force/special committee.

Specification of Study Questions and Deadlines for All Studies. A section of the resolution should set out the specific questions to be addressed. These should be stated as researchable questions and not policy determinations.

- In general, study questions should be stated in terms that can be addressed with information and analysis (how many, how much, how often, how effective, how efficient, who is affected) rather than with value judgments or opinions (adequacy, appropriateness, how good, how bad) and should ask for a description of the situation of interest.

- Resolutions directing studies to be completed by LRC staff would normally only request description, analysis, and policy options, not policy recommendations.
• Resolutions directing studies to interim joint committees, statutory committees, or task forces/special committees can include the requirement that recommendations be made. If the recommendations are to be in the form of a bill draft, this should be stated in the study resolution.

• Reporting requirements and a reasonable and appropriate deadline should be established for all studies. Indicate to what group the study should be reported and the reporting deadline. For legislative studies, usually the report is to LRC for its referral to the appropriate committee, and because these are legislative study groups, reports are not usually made to the Governor. Generally, deadlines should be prior to the next session of the General Assembly, if that would provide adequate time for completion of the study and reporting of its results.

Provisions of this resolution [or statute--House Rule 50] to the contrary notwithstanding, the Legislative Research Commission shall have the authority to alternatively assign the issues identified herein to an interim joint committee or subcommittee thereof, and to designate a study completion date.

This language need not be included in resolutions directing studies by executive or judicial branch entities.

Sec. 507. Legislative Citations

For the purpose of extending the commendations, condolences, or congratulations of either house of the General Assembly, or to recognize a particular event or occasion, a “Legislative Citation” may be issued. Citations are not resolutions and may not be used for procedural matters, for matters of a controversial or partisan political nature, or in place of resolutions memorializing the United States Congress; they are suitable only when appropriate to express the sentiment of either house with reference to a person or event.

Citations do not proceed from one house to the other but stand adopted upon action by the house in which they originate.

Citations are prepared in single copy on artistically designed forms, suitable for framing, bear the signature of the sponsor and the name of the person or event cited, and upon adoption are spread at length upon the Journal.

Those called on to draft legislative citations prepare the draft on a suitable work form, which is then transmitted to the clerk for final typing and presentation to the sponsor.

Legislative citations avoid the printing and other procedural complexities attendant upon simple resolutions; and under the rules, resolutions are not to be accepted for introduction if the same action may be taken by adoption of a legislative citation.
Chapter 6

Constitutional Considerations

Sec. 601. Introduction

The bill drafter needs to be thoroughly familiar with constitutional limitations on legislation. Although it is not his or her job to rule on the constitutionality or merit of a bill, the drafter should bring to the sponsor’s attention any proposal that appears to contravene constitutional restrictions. The careful drafter will check court decisions to see if similar legislation previously has been declared unconstitutional. If so, it may be possible to draft the new legislation to overcome the objections in the court’s decision.

Sec. 602. Rights of Individuals

The most fundamental restrictions on legislative powers are those defined by the Bill of Rights (Ky. Const., §§ 1 to 26). The General Assembly may not deprive persons of the right to life, liberty, property, the pursuit of happiness, peaceable assembly, bearing arms, or redress of grievances; prohibit religious freedom and give preference to any church or creed; restrict freedom of speech or of the press; grant exclusive emoluments or privileges except for public service; or take property for public use without compensation. Accused persons have the right to habeas corpus, to know the charges against them, to secure witnesses, and to testify in their own behalf; they may not be compelled to testify against themselves. The use of the courts for redress of injury may not be denied, and the amount to be recovered for injuries to person or property may not be limited. The General Assembly may not pass bills of attainder, enact ex post facto laws, or impair the obligation of contracts.

Sec. 603. Local and Special Legislation

No special law may be enacted in any case where a general law may be made applicable, nor may any locality be exempted from the operation of a general act (Const., §§ 59, 60). A “special” law is one that applies only to particular persons, places, or things, or that separates them from the whole class to which the law might otherwise apply. A “local” law is one that operates within territorial limits other than the whole state or a properly constituted class therein.

In connection with local laws, or laws operating in local areas, Section 60 of the Constitution should be kept in mind. It reads:

The General Assembly shall not indirectly enact any special or local act by the repeal in part of a general act, or by exempting from the operation of a general act any city, town, district or county; but laws repealing local or special acts may be enacted. No law shall be enacted granting powers or privileges in any case where the granting of such powers or privileges shall have been provided for by a general law, nor where the courts have jurisdiction to grant the same or to give the relief asked for. No law, except such as relates to the sale, loan or gift of vinous, spirituous or malt liquors, bridges, turnpikes or other public roads, public buildings or improvements, fencing, running at large of stock, matters pertaining to common schools, paupers, and the regulation by counties, cities, towns or other municipalities of their local affairs, shall be enacted to take effect upon the approval of any other authority than the General Assembly, unless otherwise expressly provided in this Constitution.

Local or special acts in the following cases are expressly prohibited by Section 59 of the Constitution:

- Regulating the jurisdiction, practice, or circuits of the Court of Justice and its judges and justices;
- Regulating the summoning, impaneling, or pay of jurors;
- Changing venue;
- Regulating punishment of crimes or misdemeanors;
- Regulating the limitation of civil or criminal cases;
- Affecting the estate of persons under disabilities, dececants, or minors;
- Declaring persons of age or affecting the status of a minor;
- Changing the law of descent or distribution;
- Authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children;
- Granting divorces;
- Changing the names of persons;
- Giving effect to invalid instruments;
- Legalizing invalid acts of public officers;
- Refunding money legally paid into the Treasury;
- For assessment and collection of taxes;
- For opening or altering private roads;
- Chartering corporations, licensing ferry, bridge, or road companies, declaring streams navigable, regulating toll roads, or regulating the running at large of stock;
Changing fees of public officers or authorizing appointment of deputies;
Granting the right to lay railroad tracks;
Conducting elections;
Designating the places of voting or changing the boundaries of precincts;
Regulating the interest rate;
Creating, extending, enforcing, impairing, or releasing liens;
Protecting fish and game;
Regulating labor, trade, mining, or manufacturing;
Providing for the management of common schools;
Locating or changing county seats;
Providing for local elections on the sale of liquor; and Restoring citizenship to persons convicted of a crime.

Sec. 604. Revenue and Debt

Some of the more important constitutional provisions concerning the General Assembly’s fiscal powers are listed below.

No money shall be drawn from the Treasury except pursuant to law (Const., § 230);
Revenue bills must originate in the House (Const., § 47);
The power to tax property may not be surrendered or suspended (Const., § 175);
Debt may not be contracted in excess of five hundred thousand dollars (Const., § 49);
Certain debt may not be authorized without approval of the voters (Const., § 50);
Taxes may be levied only for public purposes (Const., §171).

Sec. 605. Public Officers

Certain restrictions regulate bills pertaining to public officers:

Salaries or compensation of public officers may not be changed during the term for which they were elected (Const., §§ 42, 44, 120, 161, 235);
Compensation may not exceed constitutional limits (Const., § 246);
Appointment of an officer must be for a certain term of years (Const., § 23); and
All officers, except for statewide elected officers, must be elected in even-numbered years (Const., §§ 31, 95, 97, 99, 167).
Sec. 606

Sec. 606. Other Limitations

Other important restrictions on legislation include the following:

Regular elections must be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November (Const., § 148);

Local referendum elections are permitted only on matters pertaining to liquor, public roads and buildings, fencing, common schools, paupers, local government affairs, and stock running at large (Const., § 60);

No bill may relate to more than one subject, and that shall be expressed in the title (Const., § 51); and

Statewide referendum elections are permitted only on the issues of contracting debt and classifying property for taxation, except for ratification of constitutional amendments or calls for a constitutional convention (Const., §§ 50, 171, 256, 258).
Chapter 7
Amendments and Substitutes

Sec. 701. Introduction

This chapter contains provisions that drafters should observe in order to maintain accuracy and uniformity in the preparation of amendments and committee substitutes. Some sample amendments can be found in Appendix D.

Sec. 702. The Amendment Form

LRC’s word processing system is used to generate all amendment forms. The forms are produced using the LRC Bill Drafting System, version 1.0, by selecting the “Amendment” drafting option. The person typing the amendment responds to a series of prompts before entering the text into the computer.

The entire content of an amendment must be entered on the amendment form through LRC’s computer system. This allows the Bill Processing Room to computer-engross adopted amendments into bills using the document ID number.

Do not photocopy paste-up versions of amendments onto amendment forms. If an amendment contains large portions of bills previously entered into our system, the drafter may gain access to that bill’s contents electronically if the bill was drafted within that drafter’s group or by calling the Bill Processing Room to allow that bill to be shared with the drafter. Similarly, if an amendment is to include a new section amending a current statute, the text of that statute may be accessed from our internal statutory database the same as when completing a bill draft.

In drafting an amendment for someone else to enter into the system, use plain paper and indicate a Senate or House heading, depending on the house for which the amendment is being prepared.
Sec. 703. The Heading on the Amendment Form

The form (“House of Representatives” or “Senate” heading) to use depends on which chamber will receive the amendment you are preparing. For example, if a Senate bill is being amended in the House, use a form with a House heading.

Sec. 704. Processing the Amendment Form

Initial each amendment that you prepare next to the page number at the bottom of each page of the form. If the amendment is very long, you need only initial the first and last pages.

The amendment form contains the legislator’s typewritten name and a line for his or her signature. This computer-generated form assigns page numbers and shows the total number of pages making up the amendment. Prior to delivery, all amendments must be reviewed by the statute reviser’s office for form and content and initialed by a reviser. If possible, have the legislator sign the initial printed-out copy of the amendment before copying the number required for filing. Each chamber’s rules require an original and six copies of each amendment for filing. You should also provide the sponsor with an extra copy.

Sec. 705. Methods of Amending

No set words or phrases are required in describing the amendments to be made. However, use great care in adding, deleting, bracketing, and underlining material and in properly citing the page and line numbers where the changes are to be made in the bill. Some examples of amendments can be found in Appendix D of this manual.

Sec. 706. Changing a Current KRS Section, as Amended by the Bill

The comments in this section apply when the text of the section of the bill that you are amending is preceded by the introductory phrase “KRS xxx is amended to read as follows.”

If you are to delete underlined material from the section, instruct the person reading your amendment to amend the bill on a cited page and line, e.g., “by deleting the word ‘government’.’” Do not bracket underlined material, since it is not in the current law.

If you are to eliminate material that is not underlined, you are taking current statutory language out of the bill and out of the law. Therefore, remove these words or phrases with brackets and strikethroughs. For example, instruct the reader to amend the bill on the cited page and line “by placing brackets around and striking through the word ‘government’.” The only material that is ever bracketed and struck through in a bill or amendment is current KRS language. Introductory clauses for sections, i.e., “Section xxx. KRS xxx is amended to read as follows,” are not in the KRS and should be amended by deleting or adding words or numbers, and not by bracketing or inserting underlined material.

If you are to add new material to a current section of law, do so by instructing the reader to add underlined material on the appropriate page and line. For example, “by inserting the word ‘government’ after ‘state’.”

In adding, deleting, or bracketing and striking through material, be certain that the reference point you cite to the reader is unique. For example, if there are two words “to” on a given page and line, and you want to bracket and strike through the first one only, state “On page xxx, line xxx, by bracketing and striking through the first use of the word ‘to’.”

To restore the entirety of an existing KRS section to its current form rather than as amended by the bill, simply delete the appropriate section from the bill. (If you bracket the current law, you are effectively repealing it.) If you delete a section of the bill, be sure to renumber all subsequent sections accordingly. Also, check the text of the other sections in the bill, which may refer to a deleted or renumbered section, and change those references accordingly.

If you want to restore only part of an existing KRS section to its current form rather than as amended by the bill, do so by instructing the reader to delete the brackets around and strikethrough from the appropriate word or words. For example, “On page xxx, line xxx, by deleting the brackets and strikethrough from the words ‘health maintenance organization’.” If the struck-through word or words that you wish to restore are not immediately preceded and followed by brackets, you must first close the existing struck-through material with a bracket, delete the strikethrough from the text to be restored, and then place a new opening bracket before the remaining struck-through material. For example, “On page xxx, line xxx, by placing a closing bracket after the word ‘sheriff’; removing the strikethrough from the phrase “Commonwealth’s attorney,”; and placing an opening bracket before the word ‘special’.”

If you bracket and strike through part of an existing section of the KRS, you should delete, rather than bracket and strike through, any underlined bold italic words that would appear between the brackets that you have added.

Sec. 707. Changing Proposed New KRS Sections or Noncodified Sections in a Bill

Never use brackets or strikethrough to amend a section that begins “SECTION XXX. A NEW SECTION OF KRS CHAPTER XXX IS CREATED TO READ AS FOLLOWS.” Amend this type of section by instructing the reader to add (with underlining) or delete underlined material.

Never use brackets, strikethrough, or underlined bold italics to amend a section that begins “Section xxx” immediately followed by substantive material (e.g., an appropriation, an emergency clause, or repealers). Amend this type of section by simply instructing the reader to add (without underlined bold italics) or delete material.

If you add a proposed new KRS section to a bill, its text should be in underlined bold italics.

Deleting a section from a bill requires that all subsequent sections in the bill be renumbered and that all internal references to deleted or renumbered sections be altered as well.

Sec. 708. Bill Title

When drafting an amendment, always check the title of the bill to see if it would still apply if the amendment were adopted and engrossed into the bill. If necessary, a title amendment should be prepared. A title amendment is always a separate amendment to the bill and must be voted upon separately.
Titles are amended by deleting and inserting material, without brackets or underlining, or by a simple statement as in the example below.

On page 1, line 1, amend the title to read as follows: “AN ACT relating to_____.”

Then write the new title as it should appear. When preparing the amendment, select “Title Amendment” in the box that appears on the computer screen. The computer system will insert the word “TITLE” on the amendment form.

Sec. 709. Committee Substitutes

A committee may wish to change a bill so extensively that proposing an alternative version would be preferable to attempting a series of amendments. This may be done through the adoption of a committee substitute. Ordinarily a drafter preparing a proposed committee substitute should mark up a copy of the original bill to reflect desired changes, rather than generating a new document through the bill drafting template. A proposed committee substitute is submitted to the reviser’s office for review and then transmitted to the Bill Processing Room for entry and printing.

In jacketing committee substitutes, the jacket of the house of original introduction is used, even if the committee taking action is in the other house. On the jacket in the space above the bill number should be typed the words “COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE FOR” and in the space below the words “INTRODUCED BY” should be typed the name of the committee, designating whether Senate or House committee.

Since technically it is considered an amendment, a committee substitute is always typed with the title of the original bill. If a title amendment is necessary, it is prepared on a separate amendment form, because an amendment to a title is always done by a separate vote.
Chapter 8
Preparing Summaries for the Legislative Record

Sec. 801. Introduction

The Legislative Record is the primary tool for finding bills, resolutions, and amendments during legislative sessions. Accuracy and thoroughness in summarizing and indexing items for the Record are essential if legislators, staff, executive agencies, lobbyists, the media, and the general public are to be able to find and understand the matters being considered by the General Assembly.

Bills and Resolutions

Sec. 802. Mechanics of Preparation of Summaries

Prepare the bill summary form by using LRC’s Bill Drafting System, version 1.0 and selecting the “Draft Details” tab. When the summary form is complete, transmit it electronically to the Bill Processing Room and insert a paper copy in the bill folder.

Sec. 803. Preparing a Bill Summary

Having written a bill, the drafter should know best what it does. Stress the main points. A summary should express the change in the law to be achieved by the bill. If a bill creates, tell what it creates and for what purposes, but omit how the thing is created, salaries of board members or how they are appointed, their authority to promulgate regulations, and the procedure for judicial review of decisions by the board. Avoid detailed exposition of provisions. When a bill increases or decreases something, always specify the previous amount. Tell how much of a change a bill makes as well as the fact that it makes a change. If a bill changes procedure for, say, selection of board members by election rather than appointment, express it that way. The phrases “instead of” and “rather than” are good tools for summaries of provisions like these.
Sec. 804

Sec. 804. Format for a Bill Summary

The general rule for preparation of narrative bill summaries is to begin each segment in your summary with a root verb. The action in the bill is in process of being accomplished. Say “create a board . . .” rather than “creates a board . . .” or “a board is created. . . .” The following words are most useful for beginning your segments: authorize, enable or permit, create or establish, direct or require, grant, appropriate, limit, exempt, prohibit or forbid, increase or decrease, change, reclassify (for cities), include or exclude, redefine, add, amend, repeal.

In segments dealing with amendments to existing statutes, if the description of the subject of the action necessarily falls near the end of the segment, use the term “relating to” immediately after the number of the section amended. For example, say: “Amend KRS 287.215, relating to the State Board of Podiatry, to redefine the terms, compensation, selection, and qualifications of members.”

End each segment except the last with a semicolon. Please use articles. Try not to use the term “the Act” or “this Act” in a summary. Do not use the words “shall” or “may.” In mandatory legislation, the language “shall” is expressed in a summary by saying “require” or “direct.” Permissive language is expressed in the summary by the terms “authorize” or “permit.” Avoid the words “specify,” “provide,” and “stipulate” as segment openers unless absolutely necessary. Each segment but the first begins with a lowercase letter.

Use Arabic numerals if possible. Omit severability clauses in summarizing. Emergency clauses, however, must be indicated in the summary: simply say “EMERGENCY” as the final word in the summary. The emergency clause, if any, customarily is placed at or near the end of the bill and is preceded by a “Whereas.” If the effective date is extraordinary, say “EFFECTIVE XXXXX XX, 2012” as your last segment. All such effective date and emergency segments should appear in all capital letters.

Appropriations must be in the summary, in their exact dollar amounts, expressed in Arabic numerals.

Any taxation provisions made by the bill must also be in the summary.
Sec. 805. Summarizing Amendments to Existing Sections

Amendments to existing portions of the law are shown in bills by using underlined bold italics for new material and by bracketing and striking through deleted material. For example: “Possession of burglar’s tools is a Class 4[B] misdemeanor.” Some bills amend many sections, some only one or two. As a rule of thumb, if the bill amends more than six or seven sections, begin the summary with “Amend various sections of KRS Chapter 347” rather than using a separate “amend” phrase for each section amended, as you would if the bill amends only three or four sections. Occasionally a bill will amend one or two sections to effect a significant change in the law and will amend several other sections simply to bring them in conformity with the major change. In this case say, “Amend KRS 237.215 to increase...; amend KRS 287.216 (or ‘various other sections’) to conform.”

Sec. 806. Summarizing Repealers

Bills that repeal existing statutes without making any other change usually will read “The following KRS section is repealed: 84.240 Maximum property tax rate.” In this case you must look up the section and express its nature in your summary, which should read something like: “Repeal KRS 84.240, which establishes $1.50 per $100 of assessed valuation as the maximum property tax rate in cities of the second class.”

In other bills, several sections may be repealed when the bill makes significant changes in several existing sections or creates new sections. In this case, list in your summary each section being repealed without telling its specific content.

Sec. 807. Summarizing Constitutional Amendments

A bill enacted by the General Assembly that concerns a constitutional amendment does not amend the Constitution by virtue of its enactment. The bill merely proposes an amendment for consideration by the electorate. In summarizing one of these, say “Propose to amend Section 84 of the Constitution...” rather than “Amend Section 84....”

Sec. 807A. Summarizing City Reclassification Bills

Bills proposing to reclassify one or more cities must be summarized to meet the requirements of KRS 81.034. That statute requires that the bill summary contain, for each city seeking reclassification in the bill, the estimated population data from the most recent decennial census and the constitutional population range for the classification requested.

Below are some examples of bill summaries for a variety of reclassification scenarios.

Reclassify Pikeville in Pike County with a population of 6,419 from a city of the third class to a city of the fourth class, which requires a population of 3,000 to 7,999.

Reclassify Guthrie in Todd County with a population of 1,457, Junction City in Boyle County with a population of 2,212, Greensburg in Green County with a population of 2,392, and Midway in Woodford County with a population of 4,627, all from cities of the fifth class to cities of the fourth class, which requires a population of 3,000 to 7,999.

Reclassify Wurtland in Greenup County with a population of 1,063 and Sadieville in Scott County with a population of 1,326 from cities of the sixth class to cities of the fifth class, which requires a population of 1,000 to 2,999; reclassify Midway in Woodford County with a population of 3,627 from a city of the fifth class to a city of the fourth class, which requires a population of 3,000 to 7,999.

Sec. 808. Summarizing Resolutions

Opening verbs for resolutions are words such as: invite, petition, request, memorialize, congratulate, commend, urge, declare, commemorate, direct, etc. Form rules for bill summaries apply also to resolutions. Treat all resolution summaries as if they were bill summaries, and do not be concerned with the status of the resolution (whether it is joint, concurrent, or simple).

Summarize resolutions confirming appointments to executive boards and commissions like this:
“Confirm the appointment of Sally Sue Southern to the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance for a term expiring August 15, 2011.”

When completing a summary for a resolution adjourning the House or Senate in honor or memory of a person, event, group, etc., use “Adjourn in honor of all bill drafters everywhere.” as an example. Do not include the name of the particular chamber that is adjourning. Doing so can create problems with summaries of “same-as” resolutions that are being offered in both chambers.

Sec. 809. Summarizing Companion Bills

To summarize a companion bill, state “Same as 2011 BR xxx” on the summary form.

Sec. 809A. Summarizing Bills That Confirm Reorganizations

The summary for a confirmation bill, like any other summary, should set out the major elements of the bill in a clear and concise manner. The number of the underlying executive order or resolution should be included. House Bill 622 from the 1996 Regular Session was summarized as follows:

Amend KRS 36.010 to create, within the Department of Military Affairs, the Office of State Programs consisting of three existing divisions: Division of Administrative Services, Division of Facilities Services, Division of Air Transport, and also consisting of the Bluegrass Station Division, which is created; confirm Executive Order 94-731.

Sec. 810. Concluding Comments on Bill Summarization

All the contingencies of summarizing bills cannot be covered here. When you encounter difficulty, do not hesitate to ask questions. If in doubt about your summary, use too many words rather than too few. Summarizing bills is a task that requires a knack with words. Work rapidly and accurately. Try to review the summaries in the latest Record sometime before the session. A summary should depict what major thing, or things, the bill does; what changes it makes and to what extent; what main items of new law it establishes; or what it repeals. Do not try to analyze the bill. Tell what major items it affects, as succinctly and precisely as possible. Try to read the new summaries in each edition of the Record to keep current. (Perhaps you’ll catch a few mistakes, too.)
Sec. 810

Sec. 811. Indexing Bill Summaries

After the bill is drafted and summarized, it is necessary to index the bill. LRC staff has developed a list of index headings for use in the Record. Appendix F of this manual contains the current list of index headings. An expanded version with cross-references between existing headings and from topics not having an index heading of their own is given in Appendix G.

Each index heading has its own distinctive number. Indexing is done on the LRC bill drafting application by selecting the “Draft Details” tab. To index the bill, the drafter should select several index topics that relate to the subject matter of the bill.

After the index heading is selected, the drafter needs to create an entry for the index. An entry is placed next to each heading. The purpose of the entry is to inform readers more clearly how the bill relates to the heading. Do not repeat the index heading as part of the entry.

For instance, if the bill relates to training requirements for firefighters, the heading would be “FIREFIGHTERS AND FIRE DEPARTMENTS.” All that is necessary is to select that heading from the drop-down list of headings. For the entry, the drafter would then identify how the bill related to firefighters and fire departments by placing the words “Training requirements” in the “Index Entries” tab.

Use as many primary index headings as necessary for persons looking for the bill or some of its more important features. Generally, more than one heading is required for each bill. Be certain that bills containing appropriations are indexed under “APPROPRIATIONS” as well as under the normal index topics and that bills that have an emergency clause or special effective date are indexed under “EFFECTIVE DATES, DELAYED” or “EFFECTIVE DATES, EMERGENCY” or “RETROACTIVE LEGISLATION,” as well as under the normal index topics. For bills with emergency effective dates or appropriations, this gives notice to the public and to legislators that voting requirements for these bills are different from those for a normal bill.
Resolutions confirming appointments to executive boards and commissions should be indexed under “CONFIRMATION OF APPOINTMENTS” and other appropriate subject matter index headings. There is no need to index them under “STATE AGENCIES” or “STATE EMPLOYEES.” Examples of entries for continuing appointments are below.

Southern, Sally Sue, Registry of Election Finance
Registry of Election Finance, Sally Sue Southern, confirmation

Resolutions and bills directing studies should be indexed under “STUDIES DIRECTED.”

Confirmation bills should be indexed for The Legislative Record under the heading “REORGANIZATIONS,” with an entry giving the name of the organizational unit or administrative body involved and the identifying number of the executive order or resolution, e.g., “Department of Military Affairs, Executive Order 2011-731.” These bills may also be indexed under the specific subject area of the organizational unit or administrative body, e.g., under “MILITARY AFFAIRS” with the entry “Reorganization, Department of Military Affairs, Executive Order 2011-731.”

Index entries are not digests of the bill. The drafter must be selective in what is to be included. Within each main heading, consider what is the next-most-important aspect of the bill and use that point as the beginning for your entry. During the session, a good way to develop entries is to check those already existing in the Legislative Record.

Amendments

Sec. 812. The Amendment Summary Form

Amendment summaries are produced on a form designed especially for this purpose. Use LRC’s Bill Drafting System, version 1.0, to draft an amendment summary. The summary should be prepared as soon as possible after the amendment is filed.
Sec. 813. Relationship to Original Bill Summary

In most instances, the change in the bill wrought by the amendment will affect the language of the original summary. Your amendment summary, therefore, should relate to the original. For example, the bill as introduced may have proposed an annual salary increment of $4,000. If the amendment continues the increment, but by $3,000 rather than $4,000, say “Increase the annual compensation by $3,000 rather than $4,000.” You need not repeat the office or the compensation since your reference to the original accomplishes that. If the change effected by the amendment is not mentioned in the summary of the original, you should summarize the amendment as if it were an original summary.

Sec. 814. Summarizing Piggyback Amendments

If your amendment attaches the provisions of a second bill to the bill you propose to amend, in the amendment summary do NOT say “attach the provisions of HB (or SB) xxx” as your amendment summary. Instead, provide the actual summary narrative text of the second bill to describe what the provisions of that bill do. You may import the summary (with the correct document identification number) for the second bill into the summary for the piggyback amendment, and then delete any portion of the summary and index headings/entries that are not pertinent to the amendment. See also Sec. 822 of this manual. If the amendment makes changes to the language of the original bill being piggybacked, those should also be noted in the summary. If the second bill carries any amendments, you should indicate that.

Sec. 815. Summarizing Title Amendments

For summaries of these, say simply, “Make title amendment.”

Sec. 816. Summarizing Technical Corrections

Summaries of amendments making technical corrections to a bill should be indexed under “TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS” and need only say, “Make technical corrections.”
Sec. 817. Summarizing Committee Substitutes

These are summarized usually as if they were original bills. Relate the substitute summary to the original summary if possible.

Sec. 818. Summarizing Emergency and Special Effective Date Amendments

If the amendment adds an emergency clause to the bill, include in the summary as, “EMERGENCY.” If it applies a special effective date, say, “EFFECTIVE JULY 31, 2011.” The use of capital letters in these summaries is designed to make the emergency or special date provision stand out.

Sec. 819. Summarizing Same-as Amendments

Occasionally, identical amendments will be filed to the same bill. For your summary of these, say “Same as HFA (3)” or “SCA (1),” or whatever amendment is being repeated. On the index lines, say, “Same as (whichever bill and amendment).”

Sec. 820. Indexing Amendment Summaries

For the most part, indexing amendment summaries follows the same procedures as indexing bill summaries. A few specific points are treated in the sections that follow.

Sec. 821. Indexing Title Amendments and Technical Corrections

For amendments changing titles or making technical corrections, simply list the bill number under the appropriate heading, “TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS” or “TITLE AMENDMENTS.” All that goes on the entry line on the form is the number of the bill being amended. Omit the amendment number.
Sec. 822

Sec. 822.  Indexing Piggyback Amendments

The heading for indexing piggyback amendments is “PIGGYBACKED BILLS.” For the entry under this heading, use the format, “SB 72 to HB 4.” Please be particularly alert for piggyback amendments.
Chapter 9

Production of Bills

Sec. 901. Form of Bills

Senate Rule 50 and House Rule 50 set out the requirements relating to the form of bills for each house of the Kentucky General Assembly. Both rules provide that “[a]ll bills introduced shall be printed on the computerized bill preparation system of the Legislative Research Commission, and none otherwise prepared shall be accepted for introduction.”

Sec. 902. Entry of Bills into LRC’s Computerized Bill Preparation System

The Legislative Research Commission computerized bill preparation system is contained in LRC’s Bill Drafting System, version 1.0. The system pulls up statutes from an internal statutory database maintained by the Legislative Research Commission. Although preliminary drafts of bills may be generated by LRC committee staff themselves using this system, the final copy used for jacketing and introduction is produced by LRC’s Bill Processing Room staff.

In developing a bill draft, the drafter should ordinarily have the preliminary draft reviewed by Statute Revision staff and entered by the Bill Processing Room before circulating it to the sponsor. Modifications can be made through subsequent revisions if necessary. Rough drafts by the drafter should not be generated for circulation.

Drafts produced with the bill drafting system should be electronically submitted to the Bill Processing Room at the time the bill folder is submitted for review. On a draft prepared with the bill drafting system, the drafter should mark with a highlighter changes within statutes being amended; it is easy for an isolated change to be overlooked by the bill reviewer and bill processing staff. In drafts and revisions done by marking up photocopied or printed text, handwritten changes should not be made in black ink, but by using a pen with some other color of ink, so that the alterations can be readily identified. Drafters should write legibly, printing the text if their handwriting cannot be easily read.
Sec. 903

Sec. 903. Proofing Bills

Bill Processing Room staff simply copies over a draft prepared with the bill drafting system that is electronically submitted by the drafter and makes any changes required by statute revision’s review. They then save the final draft with a new document identification number. That is the document used for the official version of the draft.

A drafter must carefully proof bill drafts generated by the LRC Bill Processing Room against the original copy of the bill draft submitted by the drafter and edited by the reviewer. On a marked-up copy, it is easy for a drafter’s or reviewer’s notations to be misread and mistyped by the person who is entering the text. Statutory citations in new language should have been verified prior to the submission of the draft or revision for review; the drafter should make sure that the citations were correctly typed or brought over from the submitted copy. A typographical error, if not corrected, may change the meaning of a measure or invalidate it entirely.

When a draft generated by the Bill Processing Room is ready for proofing, the drafter receives a call from bill tracking staff. It is the personal responsibility of the assigned drafter to make sure that the draft produced by the Bill Processing Room accurately reflects his or her submitted copy with any modifications made by the bill reviewer from statute revision. Except in extraordinary circumstances, this proofing should be done by the assigned drafter and should not be delegated to some other person. Taking the time to do a careful, thorough, and unhurried proofing is essential to ensure accurate bill drafts; doing this can avoid unnecessary amendments during the legislative process and prevent errors within enacted legislation.

RE: XX RS BR XX

You had requested a bill draft to provide that the sky shall be green. As the bill drafter, I am obligated to let you know about potential constitutional or legal issues with respect to bills.

Kentucky used to have a provision in state law that required the sky to be green. However, the Blue Sky Party won a federal lawsuit in 2010, and the court held that Kentucky could not constitutionally impose a requirement that the sky be green. Blue Sky Party v. Kentucky, 1 F. Supp. 2 (E.D.Ky 2010). The court held that making the sky green would be very confusing. Also, the court stated that federal requirements would prevail over the state requirements, under the Supremacy Clause of the United States Constitution. Therefore, it may be unlikely that a court would uphold imposing a green sky requirement.

Please let me know if you have any questions about this issue. You may contact me at (502) 564-8100, ext. 100 or at super.drafter@lrc.ky.gov. Thank you for your attention to this matter.
